

FOR DADDY—Pat, 18-month-old son of Lieutenant (j. g.) Luther Drennon, and Mrs. Drennon, contributed a small tire to the scrap rubber campaign yesterday—because he wants his Daddy back home soon. His mother contributed the big tractor tire. The rubber was presented to The Constitution, which turned it over to a collection point for $1.50. The sum was in turn contributed to the Red Cross. Little Pat's uncle is also in the Navy—Lieutenant (j. g.) Raleigh Drennon Jr. The Drennon boys in the Navy are sons of Councilman Raleigh Drennon.

Heydrich's Slayers Discovered, Shot, Prague Announces

LONDON, June 18.—(AP)—Two men accused as the assassins of Reinhard Heydrich, No. 1 Gestapo executioner known to millions in occupied Europe as "the hangman," were found in a Prague church this morning and "shot while resisting arrest," the Prague radio announced tonight.

Civil Defenders Of Georgia Will Gather Rubber

Declaring that "no more patriotic duty can be performed by our 290,000 volunteers in civilian defense than the collection of rubber," Robert B. Troutman, chairman of the Citizens' Defense Committee, yesterday asked district and local chairmen to launch a house-to-house old rubber canvass in Georgia.

"Our organization for defense is such that a house-to-house canvass by our civilian workers is possible and could be set in motion almost immediately," Troutman said. "The result of such a canvass will be of incalculable benefit to our country."

Georgia got off to a slow start in President Roosevelt's emergency scrap rubber drive, but it snapped into the stretch yesterday with an old rubber harvest expected to more than double the collection of any single day this week.

T. E. Horton, state salvage chairman, said 670,000 pounds of old rubber had accumulated at Georgia filling stations up to yesterday morning. By late afternoon he had scattering reports indicating the state's hidden reserve of leaky water bottles and rubber jar rings had at last been tapped. Collection in Atlanta alone totaled 227,000 pounds.

Both Horton and L. E. Walters, newly appointed regional salvage manager for the seven southeastern states, admitted that collections in Georgia had been slim earlier in the week. They attributed it to delay in acquainting filling station operators in remote sections of the state with the system of buying scrap rubber at a cent a pound.

Meanwhile, Governor Talmadge issued a proclamation designating this week and next week as a "Scrap Rubber for Victory Campaign in Georgia" and called upon "every loyal citizen of Georgia to co-operate."

Weather Will Continue Warm, Forecaster Says

Continued warm weather is expected in the Atlanta area today, Glen Jefferson, regional meteorologist, said yesterday. Another day without rain also is in prospect, he said.

Yesterday's maximum temperature was 91 degrees, Jefferson said, and the minimum was 67.

CHURCHILL IN U. S. FOR PARLEY AS '2D FRONT' LOOMS NEARER

'Winning of the War' Engages Roosevelt And Prime Minister

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. WASHINGTON, June 18.—Arrival of Prime Minister Winston Churchill in the United States to discuss "conduct of the war"—certainly including the opening of a second front—was disclosed by the White House tonight.

No details were given as to the purpose of the visit, but it was assumed it was of vital importance. Accompanying Churchill were high military leaders, indicating the discussions would deal with questions of strategy and Army operations.

Indeed, White House Secretary Stephen Early told newspaper correspondents they were "perfectly justified" in speculating on a second front. He indicated, however, that no information was likely to be forthcoming on the nature of the conversations this week.

Churchill, once before, since the United States plunged into the world conflict, had crossed the Atlantic to see Mr. Roosevelt. That was in December, and it resulted in the declaration by the United Nations, to which 28 nations now adhere.

Details Undisclosed. Early would not go into details on the exact nature of the current trip nor would he say whether it was a natural aftermath of the recent all-important conferences which brought the Soviet foreign commissar, V. M. Molotov, to London and Washington. Those two inter-related visits resulted in a joint understanding on the urgent tasks of opening a second front in 1942.

The presidential secretary, telling the press that it was still free, opened the way for wide speculation on the possible relation between the Molotov and Churchill trips to this country. Early called in reporters to tell them: "Mr. Winston Churchill, prime minister of Great Britain, is again in the United States."

"The prime minister will confer while here with the President. The conferences will begin immediately."

No Further Statements. "The subject of the conferences will be very naturally the war, the conduct of the war and the winning of the war."

Accompanying Britain's wartime leader were General Sir Alan Williams, Major General Sir Hastings Ismay, Brigadier General C. M. Stewart, Sir Charles Wilson, John Martin, secretary to Churchill, and Commander C. V. R. Thompson, a secretary and aide to the prime minister.

"I do not anticipate any further statements by the President, or by the prime minister this week," Early remarked.

He could not say the manner in which Churchill came to this country, nor did he have anything to disclose on the possible length of his stay.

The British censorship passed a London dispatch saying that he came by air.

For their momentous deliberations the chiefs of the two great English-speaking nations were afforded the utmost seclusion and secrecy.

But it appeared obvious that momentous decisions were in the making and Secretary Early did nothing to detract from the idea that the opening of a second front had been deferred on "four or five" battleships which have not reached the keel laying stage.

SURPRISE VISITOR—Long Beach bathers got an unexpected thrill when this barage balloon, which had broken loose from its moorings, soared over and came down on the water near the sand. They rallied 'round to capture the bag, which later was deflated by soldiers who carted it back to its regular post.

House Approves Eight Billion Super-Navy Bill

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP) An unprecedented $8,550,000,000 warship construction measure sailed swiftly through the house today in a drive to make the United States fleet stronger by the end of 1946 than the combined navies of all the rest of the world.

The vast program, calling for more than 500 fighting ships in the cruiser-carrier-destroyer category and hundreds of torpedo boats and submarines, was passed and sent to the senate by a vote of 316 to 0. It came as the answer of this nation's naval strategists to the long-debated question of the plane versus the battleship, for the measure's emphasis was placed squarely on floating aerial strength and it omitted any provisions for new battleships.

Prize for Carriers. Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the Naval Committee, told the house the value of the carrier had proved "relatively much greater" in modern sea warfare than the battleship.

In his broad outline of the measure's scope, Vinson said the Navy planned to begin construction of the carriers and the anti-submarine craft immediately. The smaller boats, he said, would be built inland, on the Gulf, the Great Lakes, in the Mississippi valley—"wherever there are facilities available."

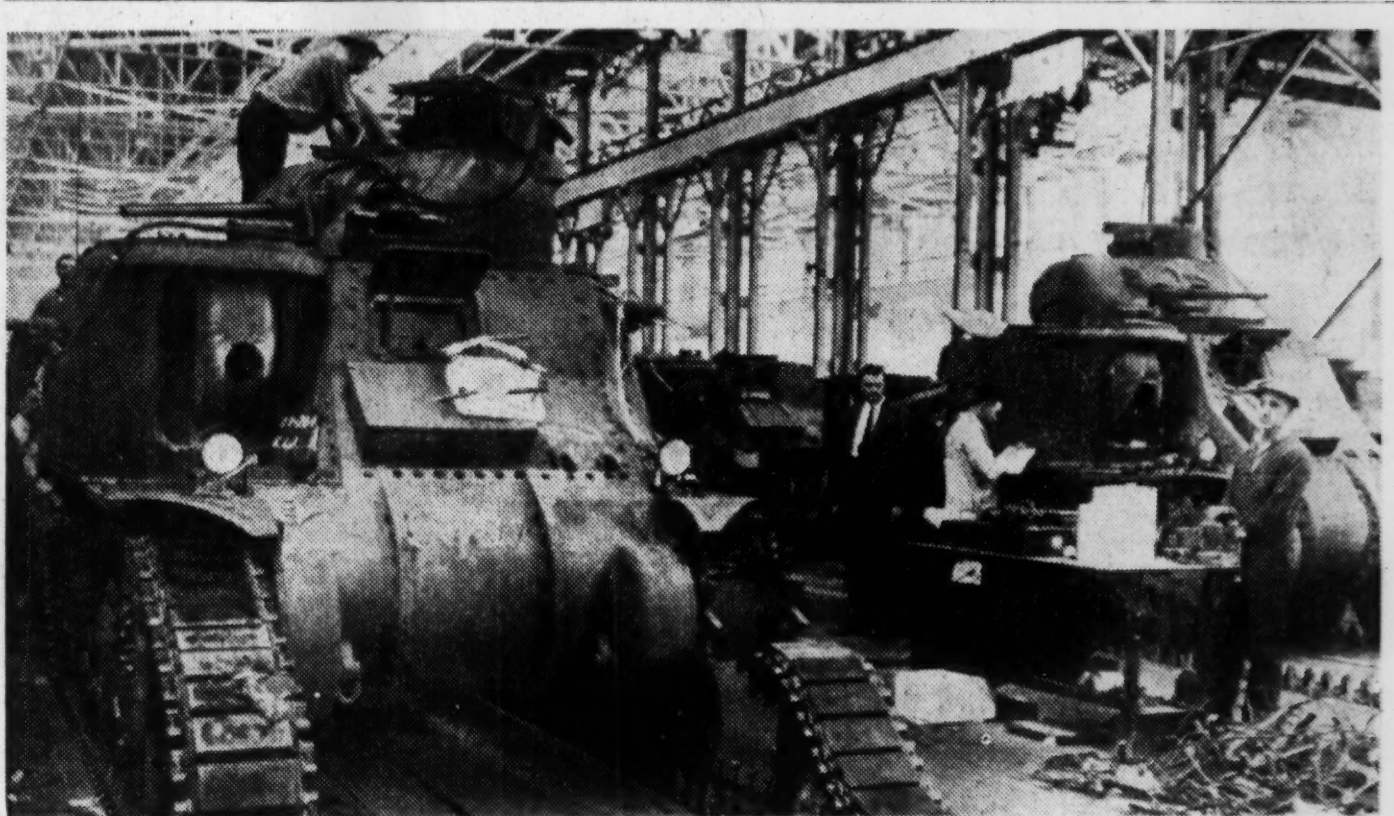

A question from the floor as to what the Navy was doing to convert 10,000-ton merchantmen, now being built in 46 days, into carriers, drew from Vinson the response: "I'll go as far as I can. I can say that a great many ships of that type are being converted."

But he added that they had limited value—undoubtedly because of their inability to afford takeoff and landing space for the heavier pursuit bombers.

Need for Battleship. Vinson said, however, the converted carriers, fighting ships now being converted into carriers, carriers under construction and those contemplated in the new program would give American naval forces "complete domination" in the Atlantic and Pacific.

Meanwhile, he reminded the house that, even with the concentration on carriers, there was still a place in sea warfare for the battleship. He mentioned a possibility that the "carriers may be stricken from the sea" as a result of concentrated attack on that type of vessel.

For that reason, he said, the Navy planned to continue construction of battleships on which the work has already started. He had disclosed earlier that work had been deferred on "four or five" battleships which have not reached the keel laying stage.

"GENERAL GRANTS" ON ASSEMBLY LINE.—Heavy rubber tracks are being installed on this 28-ton M-3 tank (dubbed General Grants by the British in Libya) as it approaches the end of an assembly line in the Chrysler-operated Detroit Tank Arsenal. The heavily-armed M-3's are said to have passed the test of desert fighting.

Main Fort of Sevastopol Stormed, Germans Say

Navy School At Athens Is Commissioned

By AL SHARP, Constitution Staff Writer. ATHENS, Ga., June 18.—The United States Navy Pre-Flight School was dedicated to victory at Sanford stadium here this afternoon with a beautiful and colorful ceremony in weather so hot that it wilted the starch-white collars of many a dress uniform.

About 3,000 persons gathered in the stadium and sprawled along the hills to witness the parade which preceded speeches of dedication.

Rear Admiral John H. Towers, Rome, Ga., the man who is chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, keynoted the addresses with blunt words directed to Admiral Yamamoto, of the Japanese fleet.

Dangerous Business. "By the time our student naval aviators here finish their course," Admiral Towers said, "our new fleet will be ranging the seas. Challenging that fleet replete with carriers will be dangerous business. I suspect that Mr. Admiral Yamamoto, who has said he intends to dictate terms of peace at the White House, will have holed up in his lair."

"Some of you may be fortunate enough to assist in blasting him out and, if he is still in one piece, sending him along to Washington, where he will have ample time to recall to memory the warning given to a group of Japanese high ranking officers some years ago by a British admiral."

Expresses Thanks. "To you of the University of Georgia," the man who made the first trans-Atlantic flight for the Navy years ago continued: "I desire to express again our appreciation of your hearty co-operation and to say that you, your university and your community, in supporting here our efforts may feel assured you are contributing in real measure to the fighting and winning of this war."

Admiral Towers recently returned from an important mission to London. He has headquarters in Washington.

Rear Admiral William Glassford, new commandant of the sixth naval district and Charleston Navy Yard, expressed appreciation to Athens and the university for its fine co-operation.

Admiral Glassford will be in Atlanta tomorrow to inspect all the Navy units.

Admiral Glassford was in the recent East Indies battles, being in command with Vice Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich, of the Dutch fleet, as the American-Dutch fleet pounded the Japanese in the Java sea.

Other speakers on the short program included: "The man who made the first trans-Atlantic flight for the Navy years ago continued: "I desire to express again our appreciation of your hearty co-operation and to say that you, your university and your community, in supporting here our efforts may feel assured you are contributing in real measure to the fighting and winning of this war."

W. T. Anderson Isn't The 'Mystery Man'

By LAMAR Q. BALL. Tom Linder's "Mysterious Mr. Raffles of Georgia Politics" is getting into the hair of a lot of people. He was ambushed, for a few moments yesterday, in the thin, gray locks of W. T. Anderson, Macon newspaper editor, columnist and authority on wildlife. Mr. Anderson got rid of the "mystery man" with a shake and resumed his labors at his newspaper desk.

Late yesterday afternoon, the finger of suspicion aimed at W. T. Linder was still peering silently and mysteriously from behind the desk from which he chats as commissioner of agriculture with the Georgia farmer, and the gossipers down in the basement soda fountain of the state capitol were arguing that Linder's only chance to develop a contestant for the "dark horse" role was to put up a silver cup for a suitable volunteer.

He'll be hard to get, everyone admitted.

Linder, who has frankly confessed that he is too poor to run for United States senator under the state committee's strict rule, has insisted that the man needed to oppose Senator Russell should be a friend of the farmer, who, also, is poor, and that friend should have enough wealth to fight all the powers behind Russell.

Early yesterday morning the rumor shuffled off down the capitol corridors: "W. T. Anderson is the mystery man—W. T. Anderson is a friend of the farmer and a foe of Dick Russell's—W. T. Anderson is Tom Linder's 'dark horse'."

And, as it shuffled off around the capitol corridors, the rumor gathered volume.

The capitol's a queer place, nowadays. Everyone's unusually friendly. Strangers bow to strangers—nobody knows who might be swinging an ax. Casual acquaintances embrace those in whom they detect a vague light of recognition. "How're you getting along, Jones?" they implore—"oh, you're not Jones—that's right—of course, how could I?—you're Smith. Hello, Smith, old boy, howsall the folks?" Rumors

Reds Continue Bitter Defense, Repulse Tanks

MOSCOW, June 18.—(AP)—Sevastopol admittedly was hard-pressed tonight but from the shell-pocked bastions which line its chalky heights the Red army and navy troops who have withstood 14 days of battering from land and air were reported still beating back the tanked waves of reinforced Axis assault.

(The German high command asserted its troops were winning bitterly defended ground at the Soviet naval base whose fall would remove a threat to the flank of the expected Nazi thrust from the Crimea toward the oil lands of the Caucasus.)

(The German communiqué said its shock troops "stormed the main forts in the northern part of the defense system, including the Maxim Gorky fort, the most modern and strongest bastion of the whole fortress," and drove through to within two miles of Sevastopol harbor.)

(The Germans had claimed earlier that they had seized two great fortifications, Fort

Governor Ranks N. Y., Ohio As Nation's Most Illiterate States

Sets Ability To Read and Write English as Criterion.

New York, says Governor Talmadge, is the most illiterate state in the Union.

"The next biggest pack of illiterates inside the borders of any state is in Ohio," the Governor pursued.

"I been to both those states and I know," said the Governor.

The Governor was commenting on arguments of Major Charles J. Brockman, of State Selective Service headquarters, that 30,000 men—two full divisions—had been lost to the United States Army because of illiteracy in Georgia.

"I'll tell you this, too," said the Governor, "Georgia has given twice as many men to the Army as New York—in proportion to the populations of those two states. Georgia's given lots more men than Ohio, in proportion. Georgia leads the Union in soldiers who have joined the Army if you consider the populations of the states."

The Governor explained his difficulties in trying to make a wait-er understand him in New York. "They're all 'furriners'," he said.

Talmadge Expert on Illiteracy—Take LaGuardia's Word for It

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP)—Down Atlanta way, Governor Eugene Talmadge reckoned today New York was "the most illiterate" state in the nation.

He had been up this way and he knew, he said, "all them are foreigners up there," meaning up here in the Empire State—population 13,479,142.

Commented Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, of New York city (population 7,454,995):

"When it comes to illiteracy, the distinguished Governor of Georgia talks as an expert and speaks for his own class."

"You can't read a menu—it's in a 'furrin' language. The streets are filled with 'furrin'-language' newspapers and they sell like hot cakes, to give you an idea of how many 'furriners' they have around up there."

The Governor was asked: "But, do you consider a man illiterate if he can read and write in the language of his native country?"

The Governor leveled the forefinger: "Anybody who can't read and write English is illiterate. We got an English-speaking country here, and if they can't read and write our way, they're not literate."

Talmadge said Georgia's literacy rate was on a par with that of any state and possibly the best of any, in proportion to population.

"Ohio," said the Governor, "would show a great deal more illiteracy than Georgia." He mused for a moment: "Let's see—Ohio—ain't that where Cleveland is—where's Cleveland?" Assured it was in Ohio, the Governor snapped: "Why, sure, that state's more illiterate than Georgia—it's packed with furriners."

House Passes Georgia Lakes Bill Protecting Near Capacity, Fighters' Rights Officials Say

Gives Relief to Boys Called Into Service of Country.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP) Legislation designed to protect the civil rights of service men while they are in the armed forces was passed unanimously today by the house and sent to the senate.

A highly technical measure, it won house approval after brief debate and an explanation by Representative Sparkman, Democrat, Alabama, that its primary purpose was to "give relief to the boy who is called into service" and to afford him a "reasonable time" in which to adjust his financial position after his return to civilian life.

The bill provides for suspension, generally in the discretion of a court, of many civil processes normally applicable in cases involving installment payments, foreclosures, rentals and other financial obligations.

Under its provisions the government guarantees the payment of premiums on private life insurance policies purchased by a service man up to $10,000, giving the purchaser four years after his discharge to liquidate the premiums that have accumulated in his absence.

It relieves a service man of liability for payments under lease after he is called into the service, and limits to 6 per cent the interest rate that may be charged on an obligation incurred prior to entering the service, regardless of whether higher rates were agreed to in the original contract.

Former Leftist Named Vichy Envoy to Turkey

VICHY, France, June 18.—(AP)—Gaston Bergery, former leftist leader who has an American wife, was named today as ambassador to Turkey.

Bergery was Vichy's ambassador to Moscow until relations were broken off after the outbreak of German-Russian hostilities.

He was married at Nantes-Gascon to Miss Bettina Shaw-Jones, of Philadelphia and New York, on August 5, 1934.

FEWER STOPS.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 18.—(AP) The Savannah Electric & Power Company will inaugurate "victory" skipstops on all of its transportation lines, eliminating about 40 per cent of the stops in the residential area. Saving of bus tires and gasoline prompted the change, the company announced.

Power Use Increased, But New Steam Plants Put in Operation.

North Georgia's lakes, only one-fourth full at this time last year, are now within one-and-one-half feet of capacity, Georgia Power Company officials announced yesterday.

Lake Burton this week was rated with storage at 94,300,000 kilowatt hours and Lake Rabun at 22,000,000 kilowatt hours.

Georgia Power officials also revealed that industrial power use is approximately 6 per cent above that of last year, despite a slump in February and March in a period when industrial plants were shut down for conversions from peace to war goods.

However, it was said, two new steam plants have been placed in operation since the drouth period of last year, sufficient to meet one-fourth of the state's industrial requirements. They have a capacity of 2,500,000 kilowatts a day.

The lakes are open to visitors, power company officials said, but persons are not allowed near the dams to prevent any attempt at sabotage.

Army Messages To Use 24-Hour Clock System

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—The 24-hour clock system has been adopted as the official time system for all Army official messages, dispatches, orders and reports.

Time is expressed by a group of four digits running from 0000 to 2400 for the 24 hours after midnight, the first two numerals representing the hours after midnight and the last two the minutes after the hour. For 6:25 a. m., the figures would be 0625.

HOT TIME FOR OLD TOWN OF TOKYO—"Atlanta's Own," the Charleston Navy Yard band, is doing a little informal tootin'—just practicing some of the hot tunes they plan to play in Tokyo. Clockwise, they are William C. (Bill) Hammer, Kenneth Brown, Ellis Williams, Frank Hardy, Fred Stoughton, J. C. Davis, Charles White, Harry Lewis, Ken Keese, Theodore Smith, A. L. Nelson, W. J. Roman and L. J. Pirkle.

ATLANTANS IN NAVY BAND—A. L. Nelson (foreground), former employee of The Constitution; L. J. Pirkle (center) and W. J. Roman, all Atlantans, are tootin' it up for the Navy now. They are members of the Charleston Navy Yard band, and plenty hot, too.

15 Atlantans Play in Navy Band

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
CHARLESTON, S. C., June 18. Tomorrow they may be hearing stretchers, tending wounded in battle and passing ammunition to a ship's gun, but today 15 Atlanta boys in the Charleston Navy Yard band are concerned primarily with the creation of good music for their shipmates.

Although they have been in service only three months, most of them already have learned the difference between the comparatively easy-going life of their civilian days and the double-duty routine of the Navy to which they are liable currently.

For instance, the professional musicians in the Atlanta group "played jobs" that lasted into early morning hours. They managed to get to bed around 5 o'clock or 6 o'clock and slept through until afternoon.

But now they begin their day at 6 o'clock in the morning, rising to the sleep-disturbing notes of a brass bugle. Then, after a busy day, they're abed by 10 o'clock—unless they have some special assignment.

Special Concerts.
The Navy Yard band has roughly 35 standing engagements every seven days. They include a special afternoon concert once a week for the sixth naval district's admiral, regular appearance at divine services Sunday morning, playing open-air concerts during lunch hour for the entertainment of Navy Yard and civilian personnel, sounding colors every day at 8 o'clock in the morning, playing for officers' and enlisted men's dances, and a Navy Yard cafeteria concert once a week.

A casual glance at the band's daily routine discloses that its members actually produce music for an average of five hours per day. Yet many of them find time to make arrangements of anything from old spiritual songs to top-notch classics.

Atlanta's human contributions to Navy music at Charleston have learned that a service musician must be one of more than ordinary versatility. This morning, for example, he plays for raising of colors. An hour later he is called to a military funeral. At noon he delivers popular music for lunch and two hours afterward he is playing marches at the head of a parade. He is then called for an early-evening affair at which classics are the rule of the day, finally switching locations for a late evening dance.

Bandsman at Sea.
When a bandsman goes to sea there is more expected of him than music-making. His battle station, ordinarily, is that of stretcher bearer and aiding the wounded. A special battle station assignment can be that of ammunition passer—that is, handling shells and powder en route to gun breeches. In his off-moments he picks up basic first aid.

In civil life the Atlanta boys had one problem which Uncle Sam now solves for them: finances to keep up a music library. At present the Charleston Navy Yard band has a list of 500 overtures, 200 marches, 300 popular songs, and 300 to 400 classical and semi-classical compositions.

Every member of the organization plays at least two instruments, and many of them can manage expertly on half a dozen. This versatility makes it possible for the band itself to have a 14-piece orchestra specializing in dance music. The latter is augmented by a quartet.

Music Lovers.
Many Atlanta music lovers and those who like dancing will recognize more than one of the following names, Atlantans in the Navy Yard musical force: W. C. Hammer, Ken Brown, J. H. McCord, Ken Keese, Fred Stoughton, Jack Patton, Bill Roman, Ellis Williams, Harry Lewis, R. Theodore Smith, Frank Hardy, Charles White, Arthur L. Nelson, L. J. Pirkle and J. C. Davis.

Twice each day—once in the morning and again in the afternoon—these boys join their fellow musicians for rehearsals under the baton of George Harmon, their leader. Since most of them are a talkative crew, they enjoy brief "bull sessions" during rest periods—and from these crop all kinds of stories.

Just the other day Williams was being verbally pumped for some details of the days when he played in an orchestra aboard a trans-Pacific passenger liner. He mentioned several Oriental cities where his ship had called.

"Ever been to Tokyo?" asked a saxophone player.

"Yes, I have," admitted Williams.

"Well, look out, brother," came back the questioner, "you may be headed back that way before long."

Earnestly Williams responded: "I hope so. I'll have a devil of a lot more company with me this time than the last."

Retail Ceilings Credited With Costs' Decline

'Battle Against Inflation Can Be Won,' Henderson Says.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP) Price Administrator Leon Henderson reported today that, for the first time since November, 1940, the steady rise in living costs had come to a standstill—actually, declining slightly—and he credited the government's over-all ceiling on retail prices.

Henderson declared that a special survey of 21 cities, made by the Bureau of Labor Statistics for the period from May 15 to June 2, showed that "if we are really serious about it, the battle against inflation can be won."

From the outbreak of the war in Europe until imposition of the general maximum price regulation May 18, the cost of living had climbed 17 1-2 per cent, his office said.

The survey showed the greatest reported decline came in rents, which OPA reported, had dropped 12 per cent as the result of or in anticipation of rent freezing regulations. Clothing prices also declined 1-2 of 1 per cent while food prices increased 3-10 of 1 per cent.

The ceiling prices must be backstopped, Henderson said, by a reduction in consumer buying power, including increased savings, more purchases of war bonds, higher taxes, and stabilization of wages and farm prices.

Planning Board Urged At Seedsmen's Session

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 18.—(AP) Delegates to the Southern Seedmen Association convention were urged to go on record as favoring a long range planning board and continued co-operation with the AAA.

The recommendation was made yesterday by Stuart C. Simpson, of Monticello, Fla., chairman of the national committee on seed distribution.

A. E. Ruhmann, of Waco, Texas, president, suggested a full-time executive secretary be employed to see that no damaging legislation is passed without the knowledge of the organization.

An address on chemistry was made to day by Dr. Paul J. Koloch, of Louisville, Ky.

He was formerly general manager and treasurer of the Columbian Iron Works here and had been a resident of Chattanooga for 35 years, having come here from Atlanta in 1908. NAVY ON CAMPUS—That was the word yesterday as the Navy's preflight school at the University of Georgia was officially dedicated. Among the speakers were (left to right) Mayor Bob McWhorter, of Athens; Rear Admiral William Glassford, commandant of the Sixth Naval District; Governor Talmadge, Chancellor S. V. Sanford and Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, president of the university.

Naval Arsenal Workers Go Out on Strike

UAW President Denounces Stoppage, Orders Return to Jobs.

DETROIT, June 8.—(AP)—Protesting the employment of eight Negroes to operate machines formerly used by white workers, several thousand day shift employees, members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), stopped work today at the Hudson Naval Ordnance Arsenal.

Immediately, R. J. Thomas, UAW-CIO president, denounced the stoppage as a "flagrant violation" of the union constitution and ordered the workers to return to their jobs "at once" or face expulsion.

Java Sea Battle Cost Admiral His Suits, But He's Got More

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., June 18.—Rear Admiral William Glassford, new commandant of the Sixth Naval District and Charleston Navy Yard, will be in Atlanta tomorrow for an inspection tour—and he'll be in his own uniform, too.

Catching an admiral without a uniform for every occasion is hard to do in peacetime, but not now, or so it seems, from Admiral Glassford's story.

When the United States heavy cruiser Houston went down in the Java sea, the story goes, the admiral lost his—well, uniforms.

En route home through Australia, he got a couple, but no whites.

So at the reception for him last Saturday at Charleston, the admiral came attired in the whites of his aide, Lieutenant Alan Morris, of Atlanta.

"I've got my own uniform today," the admiral smiled when asked about his predicament. "But it doesn't fit as well as Lieutenant Morris'. I didn't have time to have it altered, because it arrived only this morning."

It didn't look half as bad as all that, Admiral, but the sleeves were a trifle long.

BETTER BREEDING.
ATHENS, Ga., June 18.—"The quantity of milk which a cow gives, as well as the richness of the milk and other characteristics, is greatly influenced by her breeding," says Frank W. Fitch, Extension Service dairyman. "Breeding stock for replacements should be selected from cows that are persistent heavy milkers."

program were Dr. S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the University System of Georgia; Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, president of the University of Georgia; Governor Talmadge, Captain A. W. Radford, director of aviation training for the Navy, and Captain C. E. Smith, commandant at the Preflight School.

Plenty of Color.

If censorship silenced the speakers who have seen what is happening in America's war effort, it did not extend to the thick grassy field where Georgia has hammered and been hammered to the wall in football.

On the field where the speakers stand stood basking in the sun, there was color aplenty.

The cadets already here at the preflight school, dressed in khaki, enlisted Navy personnel in white sailor suits, nurses of the Red Cross in yellow and white, University R. O. T. C. boys in basic cavalry blue and stiff uniforms that wouldn't let an admiral or a lieutenant or an ensign unbend—they were all there, not to mention Georgia's band in black and red.

Academic Color.

And don't forget the professors in their caps and gowns and the Boy Scouts and the glee club boys and girls—all were there.

It was a colorful ceremony to watch.

The final event on the program was a banquet tonight in the Agricultural College hall, with Chancellor Sanford as toastmaster, and Admiral Towers and Admiral Glassford as principal speakers.

Speaking of his recent trip to England, Admiral Towers said: "The most impressive thing I saw was the indomitable spirit of the English people—from the Prime Minister, down to the cab drivers. They are not only going to lose the war, but they are going to finish it off in proper style."

Grateful for Help.

"Of course, they are grateful for our help."

Admiral Towers remarked in passing that his trip was "neither the first nor the last."

Admiral Glassford traced briefly the developments in the Philippines, and, touching on battles in the Macassar Straits and Java sea, in which he participated, appealed for a unified command in these waters.

"These actions show that the great necessity is for all in the armed forces to get together—the Army, the Navy and the air forces. This was first attempted in Java, where I had the honor to serve under General Wavell. It is now being carried on in the same way in Australia, where General MacArthur is in supreme command."

"It is all one and the same service. We are all in the same game."

Hearing why the preflight school was formed was impressive. It was brought out in many of the speeches. The rest came from conversations with those in on the ground floor.

Reports kept coming back from the front that Navy aviators with athletic backgrounds were going to town. Especially was this true in dive bombing and high altitude flying.

So a man in Washington suggested the idea. Admiral Towers took it up. Why not make athletes of all Navy aviators?

The answer was four preflight schools scattered over the nation. Georgia's is the third to open officially. Two hundred and forty-two would-be cadets already are training here. When the program swings full there will be 1,875.

The men don't just play games. That's not the reason Ray Wolf, ex-North Carolina coach, and all the other football coaches are here. The program is a solid one.

There are 10 sports on the program and every man must take one of them while studying here. He can play football if he wants to, so that he can tackle a Jap or a German if the need arises.

Endurance Stressed.

Swimming is another, and only one stroke for speed is taught. The rest of the teaching is for endurance, based on the practical fact that when a ship goes down, speed is essential only to get out of burning oil.

The rest of the program—wrestling, boxing, jiu-jitsu, which is called hand-to-hand combat, soccer and basketball are designed for toughening the guys who will hunt Yamamoto and his men.

It's a course in practical warfare.

The sports flavor is strong, of course, but as far as the Navy is concerned, they want tough fliers, not tough football players.

From the preflight school the aviator goes to a Naval Reserve base like the one at Atlanta's Camp Gordon. From there it's to Pensacola, Fla., or Corpus Christi, Texas, for intermediate training. Then to operational training, where he gets the last lowdown on fighting planes before joining the fleet.

And when they get there, come what may, they can look to their training down in Georgia to give them a fair chance of fighting their way through, whether it be with flying cannon or flying fists.

Handbills Ask Students To 'Respect' Governor.

ATHENS, Ga., June 18.—(AP)—University of Georgia students circulated handbills today requesting students to show "courtesy and respect" to Governor Talmadge during his visit here for the dedication of the Naval Preflight School. A number of the students have expressed opposition to Talmadge, contending he must be removed from office in order for the university to regain the accredited standing lost after the board of regents removed several educators last year.

The handbills, headed "Welcome Navy," said:

"Request to Students—Although upon other occasions where issues concerning the university are involved we have pledged for him our uncompromising opposition, yet for today, let us stand together in the interest of common defense, and show the Governor of our state the courtesy and respect the office and occasion merits."

Signed: "Demosthenes Literary Society, Phi Kappa Literary Society, Students Political League, Tom Terrell, campus leader of University study body; Harold Tiller, president, Interfraternity Council; Jean Young, president, Women's Panhellenic Council."

Getting Up Nights Makes Many Feel Old Too Soon

If you're feeling out of sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Backache, Stiffness, Aches, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Cramps, Headaches, and Worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Cold, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids. Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the blood pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded. Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and stinging of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if "You're a hero to your son"... This picture of a typical American dad and his son appeared 5 years ago in one of a series of moderation messages published by The House of Seagram. America's most important newspapers commended the advertisement editorially. Over 150,000 reprints were requested.

NOW... HE'S A HERO TO YOU!

IT seems like only yesterday since he walked along beside you... trying manfully to keep in step with your giant strides... worshipping you with his frank, boyish eyes.

And now the honk of a car outside... and, "Well, I guess that's for me... G'bye, Dad." And all you can say through that lump in your throat is "So long, son... good luck." The door slams... your boy has gone to war!

FOR MANY YEARS The House of Seagram has frequently published in hundreds of newspapers — and important magazines — messages extolling the wisdom of moderation.

Perhaps the most effective have been those in honor of the fathers of America — addressed especially to the Dads of growing boys.

Today, as a result, we sincerely believe that there are thousands of fathers bidding their boys "Good-bye" with confidence and pride — knowing that their own moderate habits have set a character-building example which their sons will respect — and follow.

Fine whiskey, wisely used, will always have its place in modern life. And The House of Seagram will continue to urge, as it has so earnestly done in the past — a policy of moderation ... moderation in all things — except work!

AVIATORS IN THE MAKING—This is a general scene, looking from the speaker's platform, as the Navy's preflight school at the University of Georgia was officially dedicated yesterday with Rear Admiral John H. Towers, a native of Rome, Ga., expressing hope some of the graduates might "be fortunate enough to assist in blasting Yamamoto out of his lair." There was color aplenty in the ceremonies.

Opens Drive To Have Graduates of University Recognized.

Georgia's State Board of Medical Examiners made its first move yesterday in a campaign to have the American Medical Association recognize the diplomas of graduates of the University of Georgia School of Medicine at Augusta. A resolution passed unanimously by the 10 doctors who comprise the state board protested the action of the Council on Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association which "has seen fit to drop the medical college of the University of Georgia from its list of approved colleges."

Although no member of the faculty of the university medical school was affected by Governor Talmadge's famous "purge" of the University System of Georgia, the American Medical Association has withdrawn recognition of the Georgia school, depriving students of credits if they attempt to practice in other states.

All-Out War. The resolution was accepted yesterday as the opening shot in what may develop into an all-out war between the Georgia medical board and the American Medical Association. Only four of the 10 members of the board are Talmadge appointees, the other six were appointed by former Governor Rivers.

Of the board's authority, Governor Talmadge commented yesterday: "That board can refuse to recognize the right to practice in Georgia of any doctor with a diploma from an out-of-state school."

The Governor would comment no further. The Board of Examiners pointed out that not only was the faculty of the medical college undisturbed in the "purge" but that the school's faculty and equipment has been increased to a point where the classes can be doubled.

Said the examiners: "We believe the act is unjustified. The function of this board of the American Medical Association is to investigate the conditions of medical education in schools and to suggest means and methods by which the school may be improved if found not up to requirements or standard in order that the science and art of medicine and the bettering of public health may be promoted.

"The Medical College of Augusta has met every requirement as to equipment, teaching facilities, clinical materials, hospital beds for teaching purposes, financial support and all other educational requirements, all of which make it better equipped, qualified, prepared and financed to teach medicine now than at any time during its 100 years of existence and makes it equal to any medical school in the country."

Shortage Cited. "The shortage of doctors for military service and for the civilian population is growing greater and greater each day and, if the war lasts, for some time the shortage will be alarming."

"All other medical colleges being filled to the limit, there would not be another school for this discredited school's pupils to enter. This would result in there being 80 doctors less each year to help win the war. This shortage would give that much aid to our enemies."

In order that the freshman class of the Medical College of Augusta could be increased from 40 to 80 pupils, the Governor of Georgia guaranteed sufficient funds to carry on this additional work."

Protests Action. The final clause in the resolutions read: "The State Board of Medical Examiners of Georgia, now in session, protests the action of the Council on Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association and asks that they rescind their actions pending an investigation of the school."

Members of the board are Dr. Steve P. Kenyon, Dawson, president; Dr. Harold McDonald, Atlanta; Dr. J. W. Palmer, Ailey; Dr. R. F. Wheat, Bainbridge; Dr. Cleveland Thompson, Millen; Dr. L. G. Neal, Cleveland; Dr. Hulett H. Askew, Atlanta; Dr. M. B. Copelliff, Atlanta; Dr. H. G. Huey, Homerville, and Dr. G. A. Ward, Elberton.

Dr. Ward, Dr. Huey, Dr. Askew and Dr. Thompson are Talmadge appointees. The others are holdovers from the Rivers regime.

Aircraft Wage Parleys Scheduled

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(P)—The first of a series of wage conferences for the aircraft industry, intended to stabilize pay rates "at a level designed to check inflationary tendencies" will be held July 6 in Los Angeles, the War Production Board announced today.

Wendell Lund, chief of WPB's labor production division, said that union and management spokesmen of nine major manufacturers on the west coast would participate in the conference.

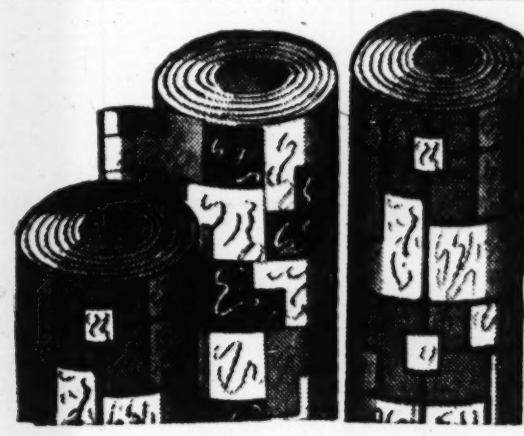

It will be followed by similar conferences in other regions, and a series of zone stabilization agreements, like those reached in the shipbuilding industry, is expected to result.

'Second Front' Russo-British Looms in Visit Treaty Given Of Churchill Soviet Okay

In Europe was uppermost in the conversations.

The previous Roosevelt-Churchill meetings, which might be taken as affirming precedents, resulted in announcements of world importance. They met at sea last August, before the United States entered the war, and from that meeting emerged the historic Atlantic Charter setting forth their hopes for a post-war world.

And the declaration by the United Nations ensued from their meeting again in Washington last December.

Despite a statement by Early that he did not know whether Churchill's trip to this country had been arranged while Molotov was a secret visitor here, the close juxtaposition of the conferences appeared to some observers to afford more than a mere coincidence.

U. S. Hero in Battle of Coral Sea Blasted Jap Ship, Self in Dive

(This is the seventh in a series of stories supplied to the Associated Press by the Chicago Tribune whose foreign correspondent, Stanley Johnston, was the only American newspaperman aboard the aircraft carrier Lexington in the Coral Sea engagement.)

By STANLEY JOHNSTON.
(Copyright 1942 by the Chicago Tribune)

CHICAGO, June 18.—In her last fight the Lexington was not merely on the receiving end of battle blows. Her airmen, banding with those of the second carrier in our sea-borne air force, delivered a devastating left hook, followed by a right cross to the Japanese chin almost at the moment when the Japanese were showering their blitz upon us.

To land these blows the Lexington's pilots and air gunners swept through almost 200 miles of fierce, continuous air combats. These gunnery and the dueling I saw over Dover and the Kentish coasts during the now historic battle of Britain in 1940.

And yet the fog of war, the rain squalls of the hot and muggy Coral sea, and confusions in time and distance—you may remember that in this fight the Japanese and American fleets of ocean vessels never came closer to each other than 180 miles—tend to obscure the true picture of the effectiveness of our dive bombers and torpedo planes.

Reports "Ultraconservative."
The only real records available for the deeds of the day are the reports and memories of the gallant boys who flew away to do their jobs. They say that at least three Japanese aircraft carriers opposed them in the fighting that day with more than 100 Japanese planes. And they say, many of them told me as much within an hour after their return to the Lexington from battle, that they sank one of the carriers and left another totally enveloped in fierce flames. The least damage the second carrier could have suffered would have been a complete gutting.

These stories from the men whose eyes had beheld the Japanese fleet spread out below them as they dived at 250 miles an hour to plant their bombs on Nipponese carrier decks, and whose fingers pressed the buttons that sent streams of machinegun bullets toward Zero (naval) fighters, indicate to me, at least, that the Navy's official communiques are ultraconservative.

The Japanese lost 63 planes that day—about 30 per cent of the total involved in both offensive and defensive actions. We lost 16, three times more than in any other of the Coral sea actions. And of these 11 were from the Lexington's squadrons. The remainder fell from those of the second carrier. The name of the second carrier may not be mentioned, but for the sake of clarity we will call her United States Carrier II.

New Pattern Cut.
Certainly there were more aircraft fighting over the Coral sea on that final day of the Lexington's life than in any previous conflict between sea-borne air armadas. And the fighting that occurred there probably established a pattern for the brand new chapter in naval history that aviation is opening.

One of the most determined and gallant acts of the entire five-day battle came during the attack of United States Carrier II's dive bombing group. Lieutenant John L. Powers, one of the pilots, had told his comrades that he was going to put his big bomb into a Japanese carrier "come hell or high water."

Powers' dive was watched by a number of men. They said he held his ship straight for the Japanese deck until he was down to 500 feet—point-blank range even for a dive bomber. There he released his bomb and began his recovery. The missile went true to its mark and the resulting explosion shattered not only the Jap ship but also Powers' plane.

"There is no question that John knew what he was doing," one of his fellow pilots told me. "He knew that if you go below about 700 feet in your recovery the blast will get you every time. To stay above 700 feet means you must release your bomb no lower than 1,000 feet. He held his to 500 and was probably below 300 feet when the explosion came. He just decided not to miss. God bless him."

Contacted by Youngster.
Our first contact with the enemy was made by one of the youngest pilots in our scouting force. To amplify his report, Lieutenant Commander Robert Dixon, skipper of the scout unit, flew into the youngster's sector and remained there two hours and 50 minutes.

"How did you manage to survive, Bob, alone in the middle of enemy air?" I asked him later.

Both he and I knew that he had been flying a relatively slow plane—ordinarily no match for Zeros. "We ducked in and out of the clouds," he answered, grinning a little. "When they came after us (he had a rear gunner in the scout with him) they didn't press their attacks home. They seemed to prefer to make feinting runs, evidently hoping to get my rear gunner to use up his belts of ammunition so they could close as he was reloading. My gunner refused to play this game and held his fire until they were within killing range."

Cruiser Ignored.
"Finally if they came in too close I would make a steep turn and head toward them with one wing level. They allowed me to be in shooting position with my front wing guns and also permitted my gunner to fire forward over the wing, too."

The first American attack came when Commander Bill Ault, leading four heavy dive bombers, and Lieutenant Commander Jimmy Brett at the head of 11 torpedo planes, struck at Japanese carrier No. 1.

"The Japs were using the same protective screen for their carrier that we generally did while cruising," Commander Brett said later. "It was screened by several cruisers and destroyers that we ignored, even to the extent of flying right over one cruiser, while going in. The cruiser didn't fire at us. She must have mistaken us for some of their own—the weather was so bad it was an easy mistake to make."

"We slid through a bit of scud and came out astern of the carrier. Her lookouts recognized us and she began a sharp right turn. All of the anti-aircraft guns in the unit opened up on us, bounced us around some, but didn't stop us."

"Several enemy fighters—I saw Messerschmitt types with liquid cooled engines, Zeros and older fixed landing gear types mixed together—came at us, but we were in the final run by that time, well fanned out."

Entire Vessel Jumped.
"Just before I let my fish (torpedo) go I could see the carrier well. Her decks were empty—all her planes were in the air, either defending the ship or pounding our own carriers. We saw the whole Jap vessel jump as our torpedoes began exploding. Then we were busy dogging fighters, calling down our own fighting pilots, and heading home."

"We closed up into a tight formation, all our gunners could get cross-fire into any Jap fighters bothering us. It was well, too, because 12 Japs came down on us. We came cautiously because we were flying only 30 feet above the water."

"After several gentle passes in our direction two of the Zeros got caught in our gunners' converging fire and dropped flaming into the sea. The rest cleared out, and left us alone. Our problem then became one of nursing our fuel—we were damned low—so that we could make it back home. Thirty miles out one plane's tanks ran dry. The pilot made a perfect, wheels-up landing. Later a destroyer picked up the pilot and his two men. The rest of us made it back. We could hardly believe, from the way the Lexington looked at that time, that she had been hurt."

Gayler Leading Ace.
The fighters that Brett had called upon were led by Lieutenant Noel Gayler. He emerged from that day's bitter air combats as the Navy's leading ace.

Gayler had three other pilots with him and as they slid down to protect the torpedo planes they found themselves in a hot dogfight with only a few feet between their wings and the sea. This ended with all of Gayler's men shot down—one reported making a forced landing into the sea—but Gayler himself knocked down two Japanese.

"Halfway back," he told me later, "I saw two Japanese torpedo planes heading for their mother ship, probably after having strafed the Lex (Lexington). I was above them, and by taking advantage of the clouds I managed to stay out of their sight until ready to make my attack dive. I got them both and proceeded home."

Ahead of O'Hare.

These four victories brought Gayler's total of enemy planes destroyed in combat to eight. His fighter also has a miniature painting of a flag with a bomb in the center to indicate that he dropped a light bomb on a Japanese anti-aircraft battery at Salamaua, New Guinea, on March 10. At that time he was the Navy's leading ace—having three more credits than Edward (Butch) O'Hare. Gayler's total, however, may have been surpassed by other pilots in the Midway Island battle.

Let us revert for a moment to the attack on Japanese carrier No. 1. As Commander Brett's torpedo planes came snaking out of the low cloud, Commander Ault's four heavy dive bombers were gaining altitude for their attacks. Only one of this force of four dive bombers reached the Lexington after the battle. A cloud of Zeros intercepted Commander Ault's little force and shot down three. The commander's last words over the radio were:

"My rear gunner is badly hit. I'm also wounded. Going down on the water."

Ensign N. A. Sterrie, one of Commander Brett's torpedo plane pilots, said:

"Many Japanese fighters showed up during our attack but they didn't push their attacks home. The carrier went into a tight constant turn when it was attacked, and was smoking heavily when we went away. As I came out of my attack, I found one of our group had saved his torpedo, since the carrier seemed to be definitely gone."

Along for Decey.
"He turned away and made a run toward one of the four cruisers that were accompanying the carrier. I had no fish but accompanied him on the attack in order to absorb some of the anti-aircraft fire from the ship's guns. We were unable to see the result of the torpedo shot."

The assault on Japanese carrier No. 2 was just as furious as the raids made by the Lexington's squadron on Jap No. 1.

"We had an uneventful flight to our objective," Ensign J. H. Jorgenson in one of our carrier No. 2's torpedo planes told me after the fight. "We circled on and saw two carriers, two battleships, three heavy cruisers and three light cruisers. They were increasing their speed to 25 knots and were spread over a distance of five miles long and three to four miles wide at that time."

"We dived on the starboard carrier. The skipper, Lieutenant Commander W. O. Burch, led and I followed. My bomb was released at 2,000 feet. I could see the skipper's 1,000 pounder hit flush on the carrier's deck, then a lot of smoke."

Jumped by Fighters.
As he swooped up out of his dive, Ensign Jorgenson said, his plane was hit by Japanese anti-aircraft fire.

"It lurched and started into a left spin. After recovering I discovered a shell hole in the left aileron and wing. Fabric quickly ripped off and the wiring and tubing protruded."

"As I gained a climbing altitude three fighters jumped my tail. Their bullets peppered the plane and especially the wings and front end of the fuselage. Some passed in over my right shoulder and tore off the rear of my telescope. Others hit the back of the seat (which was armored). More came through, wrecking most of my instruments. One bullet passed through the oxygen tube which was lying on my forearm—causing the tube to smoke."

"Three bullets grazed my right leg and I got some shrapnel or powder burns in my foot and toes."

The plane became difficult to control, became heavy in the left wing, the ensign said. "I flew through some clouds and my radioman saw one Japanese fighter. Three more attacked from above and ahead. One came in head-on and I shot into him until he veered off smoking. After this my engine began to lose power—missing on one or two cylinders. I picked up a group of Douglas scout bombers and came home."

BELOVED GEORGIA BAPTIST PREACHER GIVES POW-O-LIN HIS STRONG ENDORSEMENT

"I Felt So Sluggish, Achy, Miserable And Let-Down Could Hardly Go Through With A Sermon," Declares Rev. Shadinger, Widely Known Throughout Carroll And Douglas Counties, Georgia, Tells Of Welcome Relief Through Pow-o-lin.

Among the scores of widely known ministers and professional men and women to publicly endorse Pow-o-lin, no one could be more sincere than Rev. J. L. Shadinger, pastor of Friendship Baptist Church, R. 2, Winston, Ga., for the past 21 years. Rev. Shadinger resides at Clem, Ga., near Carrollton, and is well known and revered throughout Carroll and Douglas Counties and LaGrange, Ga., where he was pastor of E. LaGrange Baptist Church for 5 years. Revival work has taken him into nearly every county in Georgia, and endeared him to thousands of devout men and women. Rev. Shadinger declares: "I would be selfish, uncharitable and unkind of the welfare of my friends if I refused to tell what happy relief Pow-o-lin gave me. It seemed everything I ate hurt me with indigestion and gas pressure that often felt it would cut off my breath. I had such a full, stuffy feeling I was almost afraid to eat. Constipation made me feel sluggish and achy all over, and I felt so let-down and weak after taking strong laxatives I felt I hardly had strength to go through with a sermon. "Pow-o-lin relieved me of this distress in short order. I really enjoy eating and food seems to give me added energy and strength. I am relieved of the offending gas and bloating and constipation. I am glad to recommend Pow-o-lin to anyone suffering as I did."

Pow-o-lin is a purely herbal laxative preparation for the relief of distress as harassed Rev. Shadinger when due to constipation. Pow-o-lin may be obtained at all JACOBS DRUG STORES. $1.25 size special 98c. By mail add 10c.—(adv.)

British Retreat

It seems, and is, long, weary months since we read of the siege of Tobruk.

Now it has come again.

In the space between several thousands of men have died. Millions of dollars in equipment have been destroyed in the shock of battle.

Now, the African campaign is back where it was almost a year ago.

The battle should serve as a shock to those who have been lulled themselves with a song of easy victory.

Japan has won an empire in half a year. It has oil, rubber, tin and all the fuel for the furnaces of war.

Germany has conquered an empire which is rich, but not rich as Japan's.

The immediate months are critical.

If Japan and Germany make a juncture so that what one has complements the lacks of the other, the war will immediately and without delay be thrown into long, extra years of fighting.

Bombs On Oil

American bombers have set fires to the oil wells in Rumania.

Those fires were a long time coming.

It will be long after the war before we learn why they were not bombed into flames before the Germans officially took that degraded country.

The bombing will help. It must be repeated to be long effective. Bombs merely destroy the pumps and derricks. Fires can be put out. Pumps can be replaced. The oil remains.

Not until explosives are fired deep in the well itself is it knocked out for as long as a year.

One may but hope for some planned system of continual bombing so that oil for the tanks of Germany may be reduced.

the United States can realistically face the situation and send in enough planes and men to do the job and do it right, the cause of China and the stature of the United States will be lost forever in the Far East.

Five hundred planes in China today are worth more than a 1,000-a-night over Germany.

War Comes to Children

Are you troubled when your pre-school child talks about bombs falling on the home or about wanting to kill Hitler? Have you tried to explain to your child what the war means? Or have you dismissed the little one with, "Don't worry about the war; it doesn't concern you."

But the war does concern the child because it has entered his world. Sidonie M. Gruenberg, director of the Child Study Association of America, explains that to the child the whole world consists of his home and his family, his school and his playmates. When these change, his world changes. "It is natural," she says, "for us to hesitate before talking to little children about death and destruction, but while we won't play up these aspects of the war, we have to remember that the horror will not distress them as it does us. The war touches their world only when you are interested or afraid, preoccupied or excited because of the war."

Parents cannot keep the war away from children. Youngsters hear it on the radio, read it or hear it read in the newspapers, get exaggerations from their playmates. Some parents don't like for their tots to play with toy planes, toy soldiers, or toy battleships, despite the fact these larger instruments are a big part of the adults' world.

Children can learn much from war. They can learn the meaning of democracy; they can learn to aid their nation by buying stamps; they can learn independence by doing little jobs for defense, such as helping gather scrap rubber and iron. From the war they are learning the immensity of the world. They can learn how necessary it is we win the war.

Security for the child is found in the parents and in the home. The more parents can do to foster this feeling of security, the fewer will be the conflicts in the child's years during war.

Norway's Lawyers

In efforts to force all lawyers in Norway to become members of Norges Advokatforbund, a new Nazi-created organization for the legal profession, Quisling and his stooges have been getting exactly nowhere. The lawyers have turned thumbs down on the association, just as the teachers turned thumbs down on the Laersersband. And the lawyers have outwitted the Nazis by a clever ruse.

For it develops that under a recent decree, the Nazis demanded that all bonds be arranged through the association. It is a law of the land that lawyers must place bonds. But instead of placing them in the Nazi organization, the lawyers have chosen bonds in the form of life insurance and have paid premiums directly to the insurance company.

So what happened? The Nazis knew they were licked and changed the law to read that the bond which the lawyers must place shall be placed in the form of insurance with a company designated by the Department of Justice. The company? The same one the lawyers had been placing the bonds with. Norway's patriotic lawyers welcomed the news as a Nazi admission of complete defeat and frustration.

Straws and Planes

There was an item of news on yesterday which was a straw in the tactical wind.

Canadian planes have joined those of the Americans in Alaska.

It can mean but one thing. We need them. We believe the Japanese are coming back again in force to strike at the Aleutians and seek to prevent aid to Siberia and any attacks on Japan itself.

We have bases in Alaska. The Japanese have shown they believe if they can take or destroy our bases they will be immune to attack.

They might.

That is why we must hold the few bases left and defend the largest of all, Australia.

You can imagine the fever of our war leaders. All our allies are crying, pleading for planes. We are building more than any nation has built in a month-to-month schedule.

OUR NAVAL STRENGTH GROWING:

(From the McDonough Advertiser)

Americans should be encouraged by evidence of increasing naval strength. Our new warships are gradually beginning to affect the strategy of the Japanese war and this is important. As Raymond Clapper says, before we can hope to wage effective land campaigns we must regain superiority on the seas and possess bases vital to our supply routes.

When the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, the United States was "building a fleet much larger than its existing units. This explains why Japan could not delay her effort. As the ships came into service, they stole a march on the world.

The naval strength of Japan was a mystery. The nine battleships of the disarmament treaty were augmented, it is believed, by five others. In cruisers the Japs were ahead of us but we had more destroyers and, possibly submarines.

In carriers the Japanese stole a march on the world and surprising strength in this category has been a major factor in Japanese successes.

The steady expansion of Japanese offensives present heavier responsibilities. The Jap fleet must guard Japan and safeguard the sea routes to Australia and India, as well as protect island bases that stand as sentinels in the Pacific.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

FRANCE'S FALL WASHINGTON, June 18.—This week marks the second anniversary of the fall of France and many interesting commentaries are being written on how the course of history might have been changed had Marshal Pétain made a more daring decision to fight on instead of yielding to the Nazis.

It was just two years ago from June 17 that the aged marshal, taking over the reins of government from the tottering regime of Premier Paul Reynaud, asked the Axis for an armistice. He did so over the vigorous personal protest of Prime Minister Churchill, who flew to Vichy in a vain last-minute appeal to have the French transfer the seat of government to North Africa and carry on from there.

The French at that time had a well-armed and well-trained army of at least a quarter of a million men in Africa. It would have been possible to increase this force to perhaps a million men. Such segments of the French air force remained after the Battle of France escaped to North Africa. Estimates have placed the number of planes as high as 1,500.

What a force of this size would have meant drive toward the Suez Canal might have been a matter of the greatest military importance.

William Philip Simms, seasoned commentator of the Scripps-Howard chain of newspapers, makes the observation that had France stayed in the war it is more than probable that by this time Hitler's doom would have been sealed. This is likely an overstatement, but at the very least it would have opened the way for France to have made a striking contribution to war and it certainly seems impossible for her people to have been worse off.

INGLORIOUS RECORD As it is, the French record of the past two years has been an inglorious one. Her government has injured rather than abetted the Allied cause and the score against her is so great that she can expect little sympathetic treatment when she comes to write the final page after the victory we regard as inevitable ultimately.

England first proposed a consolidation of the French and British empires. When this was rejected Mr. Churchill urged as an alternative that the Vichy government be removed to Africa. Marshal Pétain with the crushed ruins of Poland and the Low Countries fresh in his memory, took the debatable humanitarian side. Yielding to defeat, he accepted the counsel of those who urged the futility of further slaughter of Frenchmen.

He was probably also guided by the thought of most military men of the day who gave England no more than 30 to 60 days to fall. The Hitler war machine seemed unbreakable at that time.

But England did not fall, and time has proven, as Mr. Simms points out, that the French government's failure to move to North Africa was a catastrophic blunder—a mistake as costly to France as to her allies.

On the mistaken side of the ledger it is possible to count a number of important military benefits over and above the present situation in Libya which would have accrued to the Allies otherwise:

With the forces at hand, France would have been able to wipe out the Italian army that was located in adjacent territory in Africa—an army that was used by the Germans as a nucleus for all subsequent operations there. What the British did to the Italians with more limited forces is sufficient proof of this. The entire African situation would now have been well under control with no threat of Nazi opposition in that quarter.

FLEET HELP Dispositions regarding the French fleet would have been far different. The British navy, augmented by war vessels of the French, would probably have liquidated the Italian fleet altogether by now, and it is not at all impossible that Italy herself might have been knocked out of the war long before now.

These developments might have had a persuasive influence on the position of Turkey with her 2,000,000 well-armed men, resulting in the Ankara government throwing its forces on the side of the Allies. In any event, the whole Middle Eastern situation would have been far stronger today than it is.

But perhaps the most important contribution the French decision to quit the war made to the Axis cause concerns the conflict in the Pacific. There are reasons to doubt that Japan would have ever embarked on her treachery in the South Pacific had it not been for Vichy governments, playing into Axis hands, paved the way by vichy agreeing to the movement of hundreds of thousands of Jap troops into French Indo-China, from where the assault on Malaya and Singapore was made.

Had the British been forewarned by the French of the Japanese Indo-China move, they at least would have had time to send reinforcements to the region for its protection. The Japs were there in force before we knew much about it and the December 7 blow was struck.

Finally, it is doubtful that the French people would have been any worse off today if the Germans had occupied the entire country. What remains of unoccupied France is about as much under the Nazis' benign as their rule.

The French made a sad mistake on that day of June 17, 1940, when Marshal Pétain ignored the pleas of the British and refused to transfer the seat of government to North Africa.

The Pulse of the Public

The Constitution invites expression of opinion by its readers. This column is for that purpose. All communications must be brief and all are subject to editing for conservation of space. Brevity makes argument effective and impels attention.

LADY OFFERS TO BREAK DROUTHS Editor, Constitution: If you have a severe drouth in Georgia, I can break it. Am sure the great majority of the people there have either heard or read of me. Although I did not see it, several told me, while I was in Florida, where I went to break a drouth in March, 1939, that there was an article about me in The Atlanta Constitution. I was called back to Florida in November, 1940, to break another drouth that was even more severe than the one in 1939. Went to Armoral, in Mississippi county, Arkansas, in June, 1941, and broke a drouth over quite a large area. The Washington Weekly Weather Report stated that some rain fell in the south-east while I was in Arkansas.

If I stay for eight or 10 hours on the bank of a body of water—lake or river—it will cloud up and rain within 24 hours; right there or close about—in sight. The larger the body of water, and the longer I stay near it, the more it will rain. I am not a continual drouth, but generous showers keep falling within a radius of 150 to 200 miles—sometimes farther off.

Do not know why I have this power over water. However, think I should use it for the benefit of the farmers when they need rain. Not only the farmer but every one else is benefited by a good crop year.

FINDS WAY TO PRESERVE TILES Editor, Constitution: People who do not drive too fast, and are not too proud to use old tires can put inner liners in their casings before they get too thin, and even after they are thin, putting boots at weak places, and if holes are through casings, put pieces of inner tubes between the boots and casings to protect boots, putting inner liner cement on the inside of casings to hold boots and inner liners in place. If inner liners can't be bought they can be made out of old casings by cutting them in two, and cutting off some of them, and soaking them in oil or something to soften the old rubber, and pulling it off until as thin as rubber. Inner tubes inside of casings to ends very much. And putting old inner tubes inside of casings to protect good tubes, cutting open the small parts of them, so that the tubes can be put in. The tubes may be crowded, but smaller tubes can be had. If inner liner cement cannot be bought, it can be made by mixing flour, which of eggs, and some old syrup, if preferred, mixing well and to proper thickness. Inner tubes are not such a problem, for if they are good they can be patched like Uncle Ned's breeches, until there are patches upon patches.

I do not know what can be bought or what can not be bought, except mentality, and hearts, souls, (in common talk) or what you may call it, and they never could be bought.

SAYS STARS IN FLAG STAND FOR ALL Editor, Constitution: Am writing in answer to an article published in your paper on June 18, showing the star that represented each state in the Union. What I would like to know is where you got the idea to this belief.

I am enclosing a true copy of American Revolution 269-10, paragraph 3: Sub. Par. a. which reads as follows:

The 13 stripes represent the 13 original colonies, and the stars represent the 48 states collectively, not individually. Therefore, no particular star may be designated as a star of a particular state. (The present flag is in accordance with Section 1 and Section 2 of an act to establish a flag of the United States, approved on the fourth of April, 1818.)

Thanking you for your co-operation, I remain,

PRAISES RETURN OF SUGAR CARDS Editor, Constitution: I have been wondering why there has been no editorial nor columnist comment on a most remarkable news item from Eatonton, Ga., that appeared in The Constitution about a month ago.

The chairman of the sugar rationing board in Eatonton was surprised one day when an elderly woman entered his office with two children following her and announced that she had come to return her sugar ration books. The chairman asked, "What is the matter, did you get too many books?" She replied, "No, sir, me and the children talked it over last night and we decided that if the soldiers are willing to risk their lives for us we could do without a little thing like sugar."

She and the children proceeded to walk the 12 miles back home. It seems to me that this story parallels that of the widow's mite and ought to be a rebuke to those in affluent circumstances who are trying to get more than their share of gas, sugar, etc.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Picket Lines NEW YORK, June 18. Go through those picket lines—

What strike-breaking rat of a labor-baiting union-buster wrote that?

Well, chum, dust off a spot on the floor and go into your swoon because that is the title of the leading editorial of the June issue of the monthly journal of the teamsters' union and an official command to the membership from Brother Dan Tobin, the president, who is also a member of the executive council or cabinet of the AFL. "Go through those picket lines," says he.

Has Brother Tobin gone nuts then?

No, Brother Tobin has not gone nuts. He has just acknowledged, after all these years during which many of his own unions used picket lines as the instrument of a racket, that many a racket has been put over on the American people by this device. Brother Tobin's editorial reveals no interest in the people's case, of course. He was just wrought up because his teamsters had been only by other unions whose whose have a clause in their contracts which reads that it shall not be considered a violation of the agreement to refuse to deliver goods where there is labor trouble. Let me say now, unless the international union orders you not to go through picket lines, that clause must be set aside during the period of the war.

"If you can't comply with our international orders, which are founded on necessity and on orders from our government, then the best thing to do is to notify the international union. Then we will protect ourselves. We know how to handle members having to have a bombshell dropped on the office of some local union in order to make them understand that our country is in danger. . . . Even in nondefense industries every means within your power should be used before you stop work. But the so-called picket line, and the passage of the Wagner act, in many instances can be honestly called an organizing racket that isn't founded on legitimate trade unionism."

In a certain city in the middle west within the last few months, one of the organizations affiliated with the AFL threw a picket line in front of a business establishment. They asked the teamsters not to deliver anything to that building. An investigation proved that out of 25 persons inside the plant, only four of them were in the union and they had been in the union only a couple of weeks. The place had never been organized and the local business agent requested the teamsters to refuse to haul any kind of product into the building. In other words, asked us to violate at least four contracts with four different sets of employers whose employees, our members, were going into that building. An organization that consulted us before they threw their picket line around the place; an organization that didn't have but four persons in the building, wanted us to destroy four existing contracts and throw out of work 15 or 20 of our people.

"Our organizer notified the general president and the general president ordered him to order his members to go through that picket line, as it was nothing but a racket to compel the teamsters to organize into a union individuals who never were in the union and didn't want to belong to the union. . . . Business agents who are not strong enough to tell their members to go through and make them go through should get out of the union. . . . Members who refuse to obey orders should be suspended or expelled. The international will, in my judgment, be called upon in the very near future to forward to the federal authorities a list of the officers in any district who cause a stoppage of work without the sanction of the international union. In other words, the government may demand information as to what is going on in each district, why a stoppage has occurred and who is responsible. The officials of your international will not refuse to comply. The teamsters are considered just plain suckers by many of those phony organizers who get 50 cents per head for new members and the teamsters do their dirty work for them by being so weak as to refuse to observe their own laws and thereby recognize the loafers' professional picket line."

Brother Dan! took many of these thoughts right out of these dispatches.

Mr. Reeves, whose occasional verse has so often brightened this column, has consented to be today's guest columnist. Indeed, his salaried conductor, couldn't stop him. Ollie had rather write than eat—and he can eat for two.

Sound the tom-tom, ring the bells
And loudly blow the whistles—
Celebrating Father's Day.
We send him sweet epistles,
Memories that bless and burn
To our minds are stealing
And we honor all the dads
With sentimental feeling.
We recall how oft he took us
On his knee and owned us
As his darling child, and how,
At other times he "honed" us
With the soft old leather strap,
And dusted out the stitches
And the seams that occupied
The bosoms of our britches.
How he told us that the punishment
He often gave us
Was designed to make us think
And ultimately save us
But the application of the strap,
Each day and season,
Never was directed at
The boyhood seat of reason!

Spotlight for Dad.

Some Caesar to invent another calendar or a Galileo with a brand new pendulum will have to pop up some of these days and arrange a year with enough days in it to accommodate the ever-increasing "Eat-an-Apple," "Be-Sweet-to-Cooks" or "Don't-Kick-the-Cat" days with which the present calendar is just about overrun.

Papa is now in the picture and will soon be the recipient of many neatly-wrapped and tied parcels which bear sentimental expressions of the great love borne for him by other members of the family. Knowing his shortcomings and remembering the grouches and gripes flung in his direction during the other days of the year, the old boy will be a mite self-conscious as he unwraps the gifts and reads the card, "To the Grandest Dad in the World."

Papa isn't cast in heroic mold. He's just a run-of-the-mine fellow who had some dreams of a vine-covered cottage and some golden-haired kiddies clustered on his knee listening to him read from Peter Rabbit or Old Mother Goose. Often his dreams were rudely shattered, in years that followed, by the callopie scream at midnight from one of the cribs or beds. He walked the floor with the bellowing fairy, mentally agonizing over the prospect of the morning to come when he must, sleepless and groggy, take up the day's work in order to keep the vines growing at the door and the wolf away therefrom.

However, there's little need of wasting sympathy on him, much as we love him. He was a man before we were born and should have known what he was in for when he said "I do."

Despite the rugged qualities and world-toughness attributed to him, he's a "mamma" boy from scratch to finish. As soon as he gets away from the guiding influence of one woman he takes on the dictatorship of another. His years of absolute freedom are brief and fleeting; just a mere span from apron-strings to guiding reins. And that's as he would have it, for men are just little boys with whiskers on.

Vacations Loom.
It has been suggested that most of us stay at home this year, using our backyards as places of recreation, fixing them up with swings, seats and other outdoor paraphernalia somewhat simulating the vacation spots. Not a bad idea, and one to which we unselfishly make a few suggestions.

Take some household or yard appliance such as a broom or rake handle and punch several large holes in the window screens. This will permit easy passage of mosquitoes and light bugs and you may arise in the morning as full of bites as any seashore affords. If insects are not plentiful enough, a shovelful of sand sprinkled on the sheets will be very helpful.

Most any good druggist will supply you with a small quantity of sulphur. This, mixed with the drinking water and served hot, will give you that foreign taste. Lying on a blanket, clad in bathing trunks and under the noon sun, will promote large blisters which later will become raw, red spots on the epidermis, dermis, cuticle and other layers of skin. It takes an expert to tell them from the ones acquired on a beach. Good fishing tackle is on sale at a number of sporting goods places. Obtain a large rock or pine board and sit on this while fiddling with a reel, leader, spinner or plug. After several hours of this, you'll have just as many fish as if you'd gone four hundred miles.

Repeat over and over, again and again. "Gosh, I'll sure be glad to get back home, but I dread the drive."

After ten days of this throw away whatever money you can find in your purse or pocket, and you'll be just as refreshed as you were when you got home last year.

Design for Murder.

A certain note on the violin, so we've been told, will cause a glass to break. It's the air vibration or something like that which makes the glass just quiver itself to death. We've never seen it done, but we believe it. There's a fellow across the hall from our office who whistles "My Mammy Done Tole Me" all day long. His mammy didn't done tell him how irritating such a habit can be, so he goes all day from "Memphis to St. Joe, from Natchez to Mobile" or wherever it is the minstrel goes in the song which is now filling the ether waves.

Someday he's going to hit that note which causes my wine-glass to shatter. If you pick up the paper some morning and read "Whistler Murdered," it won't be Whistler's mother.

Navy Rewards Two Georgians For Gallantry

Millen, Richland Officers Awarded Crosses and Citations.

Two Georgians in the naval service, Lieutenant Commander William L. Anderson, of Millen, and Lieutenant Commander Bob Dixon, of Richland, have recently been awarded the high honor of the Navy Cross and citations for distinguished service with the submarine and air arms of the Pacific fleet.

Lieutenant Commander Anderson's citation, delivered by C. W. Nimitz, admiral of the United States Pacific fleet, in behalf of the President of the United States, reads as follows: "For distinguished service in the line of his profession as commanding officer of a submarine, while engaged in hazardous submarine patrol in enemy waters he not only engaged in aggressive and successful action by sinking enemy merchant shipping, but he also, during that period, reconnoitered enemy shores providing our raiding forces with valuable information, without injury or damage to material or personnel of his command."

Lieutenant Commander Dixon, commander of a scouting and bombing squadron on the Lexington, was reported alive and well on the Pacific coast last week after sinking a Jap carrier in the battle of the Coral Sea. He is the brother of Mrs. T. French Snelling, 564 East Wesley road, and of Curtis Dixon, vice president of Mercer University.

His citation reads: "For distinguished service in the line of his profession. In enemy waters Lieutenant Commander Robert Dixon led his squadron in determined and vigorous dive bombing attacks and in the face of heavy enemy anti-aircraft fire, Commander Dixon sank three enemy ships."

Lieutenant Commander Anderson, brother of Albert Anderson, 843 Myrtle street, N. E., was graduated from Annapolis in 1926 and went into the submarine service in 1928.

His wife is the former Miss Frances Lux, of Logansport, Ind. She and his two children, Helen Constance, 9, and Mary Martha, 4, left Honolulu in February and are now residing in San Diego, California.

He is the son of A. S. Anderson, of Millen, and the brother of Lieutenant Charles E. Anderson, naval officer who was lost at sea in January.

Canned Campaign Speeches Devised by War-Busy Solon

Voters may have to listen to phonograph-recorded speeches of their congressmen and senators who may be up for re-election this year, according to Walter McDonald, chairman of the Georgia Public Service Commission, who has just returned from Washington.

"Every time I tried to see Lister Hill (United States senator from Alabama)," said McDonald yesterday, "he was somewhere having a speech recorded."

Office aides to Senator Hill told Chairman McDonald that they knew one of Hill's speeches was being sent to Alabama.

"Not bad," commented McDonald, "it's a lot harder to hit a phonograph record with a tomato or an egg than it would be to hit a senator or a congressman."

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

GARDENIAS-CURRENTS.

Last Sunday afternoon when I got back from Tucker, where I had gone for the dedication of the beautiful Baptist meeting house, Mrs. Newton showed me two gifts that had arrived during my absence—a box filled with gardenias, and another box filled with currants. The gifts had been personally brought by Dr. William S. Goldsmith, the gardenias from Mrs. Goldsmith and the currants from Mrs. Newton, and the currants from the doctor for me. The flowers and the berries had been grown on the historic Goldsmith farm at High Point, Stone Mountain.

I will not attempt any discussion here of the currants. They were delicious in pies and also with cereal and cream. I have before written about the currant bushes in the Goldsmith garden. Suffice it to say, I do appreciate Dr. Goldsmith's thought of our family in sharing the 1942 currants.

But I do wish to pass on some of the data in a letter which Mr. Goldsmith wrote me on the subject of gardenias. I quote:

"I have often been asked to give my method of growing these flowers. It is simple, and not a secret. Frequent, shallow cultivation with abundant application of well-rotted barnyard fertilizer. No petting and coddling. Make them take it in the open winter, with no protection. I used to think you had to protect them with all kinds of wind-brakes, but always they would show up in the spring like a puny child. Let them resist the chilling winds, snow and ice, as ours do on one of the highest hills between Atlanta and Augusta, 1,200 feet above sea level."

And then he gives a history of the gardenia. Again I quote:

"It is interesting to know that the name of this plant was given by Linnaeus (I am not sure of this spelling, since Dr. Goldsmith's chirography, like mine, is not always easily translated) famed Swedish botanist, as the result of the work of Dr. Alexander Garden, a Scottish physician and naturalist, fresh from the University of Aberdeen, emigrated to America and settling in Charleston, S. C., in 1754. Dr. Garden was a successful physician and devoted his spare time investigating and writing of flora and fauna of his adopted state. Intrigued by the native cape jasmine, he cultivated the plants, and sent back to Scotland and other European lands rare specimen of this cherished southern flower. Whereupon the named gardenia upon this now famous flower in honor of Dr. Garden. And so for nearly 200 years the gardenia has borne the name of this pioneer South Carolina botanist and physician."

"By the way, I almost forgot to say that in gathering gardenias a sharp instrument should be used. Never break the limbs. This definitely injures the plant and prevents future blooming."

I have heard another story about the name, gardenia. This story is to the effect that John Wesley, during his engagements in Savannah, visited Charleston, and on hearing about the work of Dr. Garden, named the flower for him. Anyway, call them gardenias or cape jasmine, they are wonderful flowers, and just now they are as beautiful and fragrant as I have ever known them to be. Again, let me thank my dear friend, Dr. Goldsmith, for the flowers and the berries.

W. W. Bateman Dies at Home In Alabama

Newspaper Executive Was Once Mayor of College Park.

Picketing Is Halted

By Elevator Operators

Elevator operators picketing the Candler and Forsyth buildings put down their signs yesterday afternoon and called off their strike.

The reason given by Fred W. Orr, president of Local 231, Building Service Employees, is that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins has certified the controversy to the National War Labor Board.

Egg Sales Bring Profit To Farmers

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., June 18.—Georgia farmers and 4-H Club members are today $19,000 richer as a result of egg marketing sales this spring and summer, the Agricultural Extension Service reported today.

R. J. Richardson, extension poultry marketing specialist, said 9,000 cases totaling 22 cars were sold, bringing $75,000, or $19,000 above the local market price.

These marketings dating from January of this year include 3,400 cases belonging to 4-H Club members, 2,400 cases in countywide sales, and 3,200 cases sold through assistance of the Agricultural Marketing Administration.

Richardson said 41 counties reported as participating in the egg sales.

Through the 4-H marketing plan, the club members grade, candle, and package eggs, and are thus able to sell their product for more than the current local market price, the extension service specialist explained.

Eggs are collected at the farmer's door and he is paid when they leave the farm. County and home demonstration agents for the extension service help supervise the egg marketing programs in their counties.

Bomber Command in China

CHUNGKING, China, June 18. (AP)—Existence of a United States Army bomber command in the Free China was disclosed today at a time when the Japanese enemy was heavily reinforcing his air strength to defend his conquest of Burma and attempt to mop up the armies of Chiang Kai-shek.

Colonel Caleb V. Haynes, big, 46-year-old North Carolinian who personally directed the harrowing aerial evacuation of Burma, was named chief of the command. Just where and when the American force will go into action is an important military secret.

Informed estimates of the present aerial dispositions of the Japanese air force in the Burma and Chinese theater makes it seem certain the enemy is expecting some strenuous opposition in the sky, something the Chinese have never been able to provide.

Littorio, Di Cavour Were U. S. Victims

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP) The two Italian battleships damaged by American heavy bombers in the Mediterranean on Monday were identified by the War Department today as the new 35,000-ton Littorio and the 25,000-ton Conte Di Cavour.

In its first official report on the exploits of the big "Liberator" planes operating from North Africa, the department said in a communication that "a number of direct hits" were scored on the warships.

Cairo dispatches said one was hit 20 times and the other 15. The communication issued here was based on a preliminary report from Colonel Harry A. Halverson, of Boone, Iowa, commander of the bomber force.

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

W.J. Roundtree Named Head of Underwriters

H. T. Green and L. H. Guest Are Selected for Vice Presidencies.

Walter J. Roundtree was elected president of the Atlanta Life Underwriters Association yesterday at a meeting in Rich's tea room. Serving with him for 1942-43 will be Holcombe T. Green, first vice president, and Luther H. Guest, second vice president.

Dudley Fort, John J. McConnehey and Linwood Butterworth were elected to the board of directors and Edwin F. McCarty, Horace S. Smith and Tom Penland Jr. were elected agents.

breed like guinea pigs in an atmosphere like that.

Arms enveloped shoulders yesterday, and the hoarse whispers came through:

"Don't tell a soul I told you, but W. T. Anderson is the mystery man."

The favored auditors nodded sagely, as fingers crossed racing hearts.

But from Macon, W. T. Anderson boomed over long distance telephone:

"There's not a bit of truth in it. I never have given such an idea any thought. Being in the newspaper business, I know about false rumors and how they overtake innocent persons. But I believe a newspaper belongs to the public. The first thing a newspaper has to do is to get subscribers. The subscribers should be the first interest of the newspaper. The newspaper should be conducted for the public welfare. Any newspaper editor who seeks personal preferment in politics is making a personal organ of his newspaper. Thank God, I never have been seduced."

So that bit of talk over long distance clipped yesterday's shuffling rumor.

Sees Double Talk.

Tom Linder would say only this: "Somehow, I believe that committee expressed itself in a sort of double negative when it wrote that rule and crossed itself up and I believe that rule was repealed, automatically, through poor verbiage, when it was written."

"W. T. Anderson would be a mighty fine man."

"He sure is a good friend of the farmer and he could have financed a campaign."

"But, I might get back to the original idea."

He was asked:

"This has been going on so long that the public might have forgotten—what was your original purpose?" To run for the senate yourself?

And Linder said, quietly:

"You never can tell."

Dictates Statement.

He had no more to say, other than this statement, dictated by himself:

"A committee from the State Agricultural Council will be in Washington the first of next week for the purpose of conferring with the office of ODT, in an effort to get the rule relaxed requiring trucks to carry 75 per cent of a load on return trips."

The committee consists of:

"M. D. Mobley, director State Vocational Agricultural Education Department.

"Walter S. Brown, director State Extension Service.

"T. R. Breedlove, administrative officer in charge of Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

"Tom Linder, commissioner of agriculture."

"The committee will carry to Washington a resolution from the State Agricultural Council, calling attention to the extreme situation that will exist with regard to transportation of the farmers' products unless the rule of ODT is relaxed, or greatly modified."

"It is the hope of the committee that the ODT will agree to except trucks engaged in hauling agricultural products to market from the operation of the rule."

What form the "mystery man" will take today is a real mystery. He may be Columbus Roberts again.

RUBBER COLLECTION. LAGRANGE, Ga., June 18.—Citizens in LaGrange and Troun county are co-operating wholeheartedly in the drive for old rubber, which began on Monday, with large quantities still pouring into filling stations in all sections of the county. Some stations are using their trucks for the collection of the scrap rubber in cases where it is impossible to collect it otherwise.

Nazi Motor Corps Chief Dies After 'Long Illness'

MUNICH, (From German Broadcasts), June 18.—(AP)—Major General Adolf Huehnlein, 60, head of the Nazi motor corps, died today after a long illness.

Huehnlein, who was a major in the first World War, was appointed in February, 1940, as motor transport chief for the Reich.

Firm Advised To Halt Anti-Union Attitude

A recommendation by the Labor Relations Board was made yesterday that the Southern Wood Preserving Company in East Point be required to cease discouraging membership of employees in district 50, United Mine Workers of America, or any other labor union. Josef L. Hektoen, the examiner, also recommended the reinstatement of Otis Turner, whom he declared had been discharged in October, 1941, for union membership and activity.

10-Year-Olds Solve Problem By Enrolling in Art Classes

♦♦♦♦ THE 10-YEAR-OLDS have solved their vacation problem to a queen's taste! Taking a sensible view of the tire and gas shortage, they decided, since they were forced to stay in town, to turn the long summer days to good account. Accordingly, they banded themselves together and enrolled in the summer session of the junior art classes at the High Museum, which are held two days each week.

The course opened on Tuesday and will continue for six weeks every Tuesday and Thursday morning between 9:30 and 11:30 o'clock. At the close of the class, the youthful artists repair to the Driving Club, where they take full advantage of the luncheon now being served in the new children's dining room each day, and then enjoy the swimming pool all afternoon.

The mothers of the 10-year-olds gather them up to take them to class, each mother taking her turn at chauffeuring the group. Yesterday it was Mrs. Murray Shoun's turn, and out of her station wagon hopped her own small daughters, Anne, in a blue and white striped pinafore, and Retta, in a red and white striped play suit. There was Mary Ellen Jones in a white pinafore and Theodora Owens wearing a brown seersucker play suit. Mrs. Howard Bailey brought her young daughter, Laura, who wore a red play suit which was an exact copy of her mother's, and Mrs. Hinton Longino brought her daughter, Sarah.

Displaying a grandmotherly interest, Mrs. J. P. Allen arrived with her young grandson, Michael Black. Other members of the masculine contingent who have a liking for art are Hinman Carter, son of Mrs. Ruth Hinman Carter; Gilbert and Rodney Ramdon, and Carter Jacoby, to mention only a few. For there were over 125 children making application for the summer course.

♦♦♦♦ SUMMER vacations have assumed a new meaning for Mary Ann and Eugenia Edmondson, for these two young daughters of Ray and Mary Candler Edmondson are entertaining at a series of weekly houseparties at their home on Garmon road. This week Margaret King Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Martin is having a grand time visiting Mary Ann and Eugenia, her visit having been preceded by that of Helen Candler, last week.

♦♦♦♦ WHEN lovely Jacqueline Howard became the bride of Dr. William Edwards Jr., U. S. N. R. Wednesday evening at Glenn Memorial church, she wore for her "something old" and "something blue" an exquisite locket brought from France by her grandfather, Jacques Pierre duVigne. The locket is one of her most highly-prized possessions, and is made of French blue hammered enamel centered with a cluster of roses. Hammered enamel is now a "lost art," you know. Jacqueline has placed inside the locket a picture of her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William Schley Howard.

Wednesday evening's bride wore for her "something borrowed" the beautiful wedding dress worn by her bridesmaid, Mrs. Jarrell Dunson, of Washington, D. C., the former Dorothy Ramspeck, when she ascended the bridal aisle. And in her white satin slipper she placed the same lucky coin that her mother concealed in her wedding shoe!

Her "something new," the bride laughingly confessed, was her wedding slippers.

♦♦♦♦ THE numerous friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hall and their two young sons, Jesse Jr. and Rollin, are wearing long faces these days, for this attractive family leaves soon to take up residence in Gainesville. The silver lining to this particular dark cloud, however, is the fact that Gainesville is near enough for frequent visits back and forth.

Mrs. Hall will be especially missed in those organizations in which she has been an inspired worker. She has been active in the P-T-A. of Inman and O'Keefe schools, Mayflower Garden Club, Service Star Legion, and is a charter member of the Peachtree Christian church, besides having been a member of several bridge clubs in Garden Hills and Morning-side. And in between times she has managed to take several Red Cross courses and to visit U. S. Hospital No. 48, regularly!

As a matter of fact, the entire family has taken an active part in community life. Mr. Hall has been prominent in the American Legion, is a member of the Shrine, and of the state and national bar associations. Both the boys have been active in the Y. M. C. A., Jesse Jr. having won this year's ping pong medal. He, and his brother are both talented pianists.

Recently someone asked Rollin, the 10-year-old, if he wasn't loathe to leave the home in

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her brother, Edward Bolen, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and the best man will be Sergeant Philip M. Holliday, brother of the groom-elect.

which he had lived all his life. He replied:

"Yes, I do. But I guess it is natural for Halls to move to Hall county!"

♦♦♦♦ SPECIAL significance is attached to the meeting of the Fulton Chapter, U. D. C., which takes place this afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. G. Tillis on Peachtree Hills avenue. In the first place, special guests will be the four remaining Confederate Veterans at the Soldiers' Home, one of whom is General J. R. Jones, past commander of the U. D. C. V., and grandfather of Mrs. Tillis.

Second, the date marks the birthday anniversary of Ronald Tillis, son of the hostess, who is on duty with the U. S. Army in Hawaii. Ronald enlisted before war was declared and is stationed at Schofield Barracks. The chapter members, as well as the veterans, General Jones, General H. T. Dowling, U. C. V. commander; Colonel Du Pree and Colonel J. T. Pittman, will send a congratulatory cable to Ronald to wish him a happy birthday.

Captain and Mrs. Gordon R. Catts Jr. announce the birth of a son at Piedmont hospital on June 18, who has been given the name Gordon Reeves III. Mrs. Catts is the former Miss Frances Austin, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Austin, of Atlanta. The baby's paternal grandparents are Colonel and Mrs. Gordon R. Catts, of Bowling Green, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. Allison Adams announce the birth of a son, Allison Hoyle Jr., on June 11 at Piedmont hospital. Mrs. Adams is the former Miss Frances Peace, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Peace. The baby's paternal grandmother is Mrs. Percy Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Patrick Jr. announce the birth of a daughter, Robin Wilson, on June 14 at Emory hospital. Mrs. Patrick is the former Miss Katherine Sloan, of Decatur. Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Sloan are the baby's maternal grandparents and Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Patrick, of Greenville, S. C., are the paternal grandparents.

Plan Recreation Center For Churches' Homes

A moment to provide a recreation center for the Churches' Homes for Girls was advocated by John Manget, founder and president for more than 25 years, at the recent meeting of the board of directors. The center, equipped with library, gymnasium, swimming pool and lecture auditorium, would provide needed relaxation for the 300 girls in the seven units comprising the homes.

It also was announced that a vacation next to the Eliza Manget home on Memorial drive is available for a building of the type needed, and which is in the immediate vicinity of five of the units. The new annex to the Allie Callaway home will be completed soon and will be used as a dormitory for the young debut girls at the home. Mrs. E. R. Foster, executive secretary, reported on the more than 300 girls taken care of in the homes during the past month. New living room suites have been purchased for the Eliza Manget, Buford and Candler homes.

Among those who recently have presented gifts to the homes are Mrs. Sallie May Small, L. W. Pierce, Mrs. A. P. Treadwell, Mrs. George Bland Sr., Miss Louise Sisson for St. Mary's Guild, Miss Amy Mitchell, Miss Martha Harris and Mrs. Dan Manget. It was announced that a number of service men have been invited by the girls to their dances, and that many other courtesies have been extended the men stationed at the three bases.

Brookhaven Club

The Brookhaven Garden Club met recently at the home of the president, Mrs. J. Kell Martin. Plans for general civic improvements were made.

The club voted to buy a new scrap book, the scrap book chairman to begin work on it immediately, to enter it in the Garden Club scrapbook contest.

Mrs. Z. W. Jones, program chairman, gave interesting facts on growing gladioli.

Mrs. M. A. Conway and Mrs. J. E. Kuhns will be hostess to the club in July.

Piano Recital

Miss Dorothy Scott will present Jeanne Lukens in a piano recital Saturday evening at 8:15 o'clock at her home, 1081 North avenue, N. E. She will be assisted by Ernest Hodges and Mike Chagnir, violin pupils of W. M. Leffingwell.

Friendship Club Meets

A Mother Gives Tips On Keeping Your Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

If you want the candid opinion of Mrs. Liliane Flynn, any woman who neglects to get her figure back within a couple of months after the baby's arrival is "just plain lazy and there is no excuse for her."

There are not many mothers with year-old youngsters who have measurements like hers: Bust 34½ inches; waist, 22½; hips, 34 inches, and her legs are lovely! If she didn't have such superb muscle tone, she would be thin, for she only weighs 103 pounds for her height of 5 feet 2 inches. But, having danced all her life, she has curves, and in the right places. She tells me that no matter how thin she gets, her legs never look spindly and for that she thanks her ballet dancing.

Don't jump to the conclusion that the ex-Mrs. Errol Flynn has nothing to do with her time except exercise. The exotic young woman is a registered nurse with the American Red Cross. "They tell me that from now on I belong to Uncle Sam. I can't leave Hollywood without permission. I teach at the high school in Beverly Hills and I work in the hospital." When she says work that's what she means—eight to ten hours a day.

Her method of weight control is not one I could recommend to you. She eats only when hungry and in her opinion she is not hungry enough. But if you have cultivated a hearty appetite you would probably be hungry too often. Her choice of food, however, is excellent. She drinks a quart of milk a day, loves vegetables, prefers meats roasted rather than fried, and thinks eggs are about the best things anyone can eat. "The sugar rationing bothers her not a whit—she never uses it. She has always taken honey in her coffee. When she has been working extra hard the day before she has the juice of a couple of lemons before the breakfast orange juice and coffee. Sometimes she likes orange juice with an egg beaten into it in the middle of the morning "because it picks you up and is not fattening."

The Flower Study Club met recently at Fernbank for its annual business meeting and a picnic luncheon. Officers elected at the meeting were, seated, left to right: Mrs. F. B. Tucker, president; and Mrs. R. D. Robinson, vice president; standing, left to right: Mrs. J. A. Rabbe, secretary; and Mrs. R. A. McKay, parliamentarian. Mrs. Chess Lagomarsino, the retiring president, read her annual report at the meeting.

A Gradual Reducing Diet Maintains Good Looks

By Dr. William Brady

Of the nine out of a hundred fat folk who are "going on diet" next week two go on a diet. Of the two who begin dieting one gives it up after the first three or four days. The other, alas, gets nowhere, because the diet is calculated to get you nowhere except in a sanitarium or under the care of a doctor.

Fundamental fault with most reducing diets is that they are designed to reduce regardless. A safe and sound reducing diet must be designed not only to reduce but also to maintain whatever degree of good health and good looks the individual happens to have. In a crude way of viewing the question, there are two possible methods of controlling or reducing overweight or obesity or excessive displacement. One way is by simple starvation. The other way is by correcting the underlying fault or error of nutrition which accounts for the accumulation of superfluous flesh.

Most popular reducing diets act, if at all, in the first way. The only safe and sound, physiological reducing regimen, diet or system an intelligent person should follow is one designed to take care of good health and good looks as well as to correct the underlying fault of nutrition.

Such a physiological reducing regimen, of course, includes more than just regulation of food intake. It includes at least a reasonable regulation of energy expenditure, too, that is, regulation of metabolism or the oxidation, the combustion process in the body. This means the diet must be supplemented with additional vitamins, and the individual must get a certain amount of exercise in one way or another every day.

Whatever vain dreams of overnight reduction to sylphlike loveliness the dumbbell customer of the "Hollywood" hokum may have, the first thing the intelligent individual who intends to reduce should understand is that it is dangerous to health and destructive to good looks or reduce by any method or means, faster than two or three pounds a week. As a rule a steady loss of 1-2 to 2 pounds a week is most likely to prove satisfactory in all respects. Nearly always, when there is a loss of much more than two or three pounds in a week, the victim shows a corresponding impairment of vite and health and generally a shocking loss of good looks.

Moreover, if the health is not too seriously damaged, the excessive loss of weight, if not the loss of good looks, is nearly restored in the week following, when the severe restrictions of diet are relaxed. On the other hand, when reduction occurs at the rate of two to three pounds a week, on a physiological reducing regimen, the individual usually feels better, looks better and thereafter finds it easier to maintain the improved nutritional condition and keep the weight down.

Wife Can Cater Too Much To Her Husband's Whims

By Dixie George

Dear Dixie: I do not know why my husband is losing interest in me or what is wrong. For the past six months we have lived in the house with a single boy and his mother. This boy and my husband ran around together before we were married. We have moved into a new place and my husband has started drinking and staying out until all hours.

He comes in on Saturday with his pay and if he happens to give me a little change, he always gets it back in a day or two. I hardly ever have a penny to mail a letter, much less for anything else. I always have his clothes laid out, and he gets dressed and is gone until all hours.

If I do not have the money to pay for the grocery bill, then we go hungry and have nothing to eat and I never hear the last of it. But, of course, he gets what he wants anyway. I have only been to see my mother one time in six months, and while I was gone, he lost his job, and I heard he was off loafing with the boy I mentioned. He never did tell me any reason.

He soon went back to work and has bought himself all the clothes and things he needs and has not spent one penny on me or our two-year-old baby. I am expecting another baby the end of this month, and he has made no arrangements with a doctor, and I do not know what to do.

BEWILDERED.

The first thing to do is to stop waiting upon him. Stop laying out his clothes for him. He is no invalid, and no child whom you wait upon. As things are, you should be the one waited upon. As for this next baby, I would suggest two things. Go to see the doctor, and make the arrangements yourself for the confinement. Tell your doctor of your husband's business connections, and that he is able to pay for the baby.

The only other thing you could do would be to go home to your people until after the baby arrives. Do not worry about what your family will think. There is nothing to be ashamed of in having the baby, so get that out of your mind at once. Your family will help you through this ordeal, so do not get yourself in a nervous condition at the present time, anyway. Try if you can to forget all the unpleasantness in your home and life until after the baby comes. I think you have been a little too good and submissive to his whims, and it has not gotten you anywhere and won't, so better change your attitude now.

KEEP OTHER FRIENDS WHILE WAITING FOR SOLDIER Dear Dixie: About three years ago I fell in love with a boy 11 years my senior. I am now 16 and still love him. When I was 14 we were engaged to be married. We would have had to run away as my father would not have given his consent. But I know this boy was good and would have made me happy. My father found out about our being engaged and one day he saw this boy and what he said to him or did to him, I do not know, but he left and I have not heard from him since. I still love him, but have not heard from him in about three years. I am

The New Lady Korda Will Star in Picture About the London Theater

By Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, June 10.—(INS)—Merle Oberon—the new Lady Korda—stars in Lester Cowan's "Heart of a City." Yes, it is all right to call Merle Lady Korda now, even though her husband, Alexander Korda, has not returned to London to be officially knighted by the King. Alex has been "Gazetted," which means his title of Sir Alexander Korda is officially recorded.

"Heart of a City" is Lesley Storm's play about London's world-famous little windmill theater where the chorus girls kept the show going even in the worst days of the 1940 blitz. It didn't make a dent in the New York stage-goers. But the camera can do a lot more with sensational air raids and the wider production possibilities. In addition to Merle, four other top femme stars will be signed by Cowan for this picture, which Columbia will release.

Just a year ago since Alexis Smith came out to Marsons Farm to meet me. I did an interview with her and said I thought she was one of the comers. Well, I am glad I was right for Alexis, along with being given the role of opposite Fredric March, now acquires the status of star. She is so good in "The Constant Nymph," with Eddie Goulding's direction, that the whole Warner lot is talking about her.

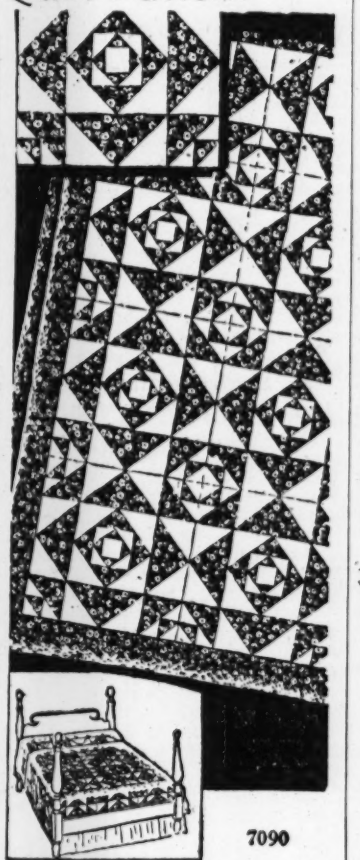

Jean Gabin is so unhappy with Marlene Dietrich away that he's packing a bag to follow her on her bond-selling tour. In the meantime, Twentieth bosses are studying the biography of Rene Robert Cavalier Sieur la Salle, famed Jesuit explorer who opened the Mississippi valley during pioneer America, as a possible screen story for Gabin. Jean is a fine actor and American audiences liked him in "Moonlight." The adventurous life of LaSalle should certainly give him a colorful background for a movie.

George Tobias came on the set of "My Sister Eileen" today being very elegant. George, if you please, had just found that the toupee he is wearing is a "re-make" from the beard Ronnie Colman wore in "Talk of the Town." No joking, the priorities pinch won't permit crepe hair being thrown away now. So the makeup departments remodel it from actor to actor. As George boasts: "It's not every toupee that can boast about being a former Colman beard!"

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Glenn Ford has been trying to date Hedy Lamarr, "his said, and so far no luck; Jean Edwards Hobbs will name her baby Mary Gail if it's a girl and Patrick if it's a boy in honor of its godmother; Gail Patrick; Adrian designed all of Katharine Hepburn's clothes for "Keeper of the Flame"; Jeanette MacDonald had a birthday but she could receive no word from Gene Raymond, who is somewhere in the theater of war; Paulette Goddard and Burgess Meredith are an item; Trudy Marshall, Twentieth Century-Fox cutie, and a young New Yorker by the name of Lee Lindsay will tell it to a preacher; Dick Joy, former radio announcer, is making his movie debut in "Gentleman Jim Corbett." That's all today, see you tomorrow! But Mrs. G. Scheps, Beaumont, Texas, says: "Let our word be our bond—and a bond be our word."

MY DAY: First Lady Advocates Less Paper Work

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.—I am becoming very familiar with the forms and applications which have to be filled out by people who desire to find some way of being and to let that information in the present crisis. Some of the people who turn up in Washington are able to support themselves and only wish to find some place where they can contribute their efforts. Others must have a salary. Still others wish to be in the armed forces. If they can not achieve actual combat service of some kind, they want at least to feel they are a part of the war effort, serving in some civilian capacity in the government.

I think there must be a certain amount of duplication in the information which is finally gathered on the various seekers of "opportunity." Occasionally some of the questions appear to be rather amusing and not to have much bearing on the ability actually to do the job in hand. I can see why a certain amount of information about people's personalities is necessary, but occasionally I feel we allow people rather little leeway as to privacy in their private lives.

I saw a decision in the papers the other day announced by Admiral King for the Navy, which points the way to a similar action perhaps for some of the rest of us. I wonder if we could all cut down in half the paper work we do. Admiral King thinks it will make it easier to fight the war. I think it might save everyone hours of time.

My decision to accept the opinion of the Treasury Department on joint income tax returns has brought me one of the most amusing editorials. They wonder how I dare to set myself up as a tax expert, and why I talk about something when I so obviously disagree in my final decision with many people who know much more about the subject.

The truth is that I am only too conscious of my lack of knowledge, but am trying to get my information from what I think is the best source and to interpret it as accurately as I can. Nobody is bound to agree with me or to accept what I think. The only obligation I feel is to give an explanation as accurately as possible in the way it is given to me and to let that information reach people who then must decide for themselves as to what they think they must do. A joint income tax return, where my husband and I are concerned, will mean paying higher taxes for both of us. I do not feel that I can take exception to that if it is going to be of benefit to others.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES).—Don't try to mix business with pleasure before 3:30 p. m. Seek the company of those who are harmonious with you. Otherwise you are apt to wonder what is upsetting you mentally or physically.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS).—Before 9:15 a. m. will be best used for "marking time," so do not start new or important ventures. You may feel as if you were being restricted or limited, but after this hour you can make advantageous contacts.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI).—While the morning hours before noon are filled with influences that produce irritation and a lack of peace, the afternoon hours until 8:45 p. m. are most favorable for weekend plans and activities. Plan your shopping, travel and financial matters.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER).—Hold any aggressiveness or contentiousness you may feel in check today. However, you may easily encounter such feelings. Treat lightly in dealing with superiors and postpone asking favors.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO).—This is not a favorable day to begin any new ventures. If you desire that they work out successfully while you will feel a great deal of energy, it will be hard to become adjusted to things.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO).—Previous to 9:40 p. m. your energy may be turned into useful channels with the expectations that your activities will be well received. At this time, deal with people of a martial temperament.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA).—Previous to 1:48 p. m. you should do your best to preserve harmony and avoid disagreements. Wait until after this hour has passed to make any new changes or new methods.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO).—This is a most favorable day for activities of a pleasant nature. You are likely to be so busy and pleasantly occupied that extravagance will seem a necessity. Use caution that you do not over-celebrate or overdo, in the way of spending.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS).—Public matters or dealings with the public where finances are involved, or where it is necessary to use diplomacy, are especially favored until 3:31 p. m. After 3:31 p. m. a feeling of nervousness may incline to mistakes and nervousness.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN).—This will be a very favorable day for ideas that start and finish now. Optimism or over-exuberance for the future should be curbed, and if these traits are held in reserve today will be an auspicious time for domestic, financial affairs, sociability and mechanical interests.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS).—Before 2:28 p. m. you should keep your thoughts to yourself, for this will be a time when arguments will flare up easily, and those to whom you are bound by the closest ties of affection will be the recipient of your tongue, or you will feel the lash of their feelings.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES).—This is a favorable day for dealing with the opposite sex, or in matters of art and adornment. Attend to matters that demand adaptability and resourcefulness.

By JACK TROY

There Are 8 Places All right. The Crackers are in sixth place. And I'll bet there aren't many Atlanta fans who realized, except in an abstract sort of way, that there are eight places in which to finish in the Southern League. It's natural to think of only three or four.

I have never thought much about the second division, other than realizing it is the natural niche of teams like Chattanooga, Knoxville, Little Rock, etc.

It has been some years since Atlanta visited on the other side of the tracks in the Scott circuit, and so I suppose it is only natural that jealous neighbors will have some comment to make.

Here's a typical example from Raymond Johnson, sports editor of the Tennessean, Nashville:

"Dear Dr. Murphy:

"I have looked over our standings several times this morning and cannot make myself believe the Atlanta Crackers are down in sixth place, down keeping the Lookouts and Smokies company.

"Is it really true that they are sixth? Or are our standings wrong?

"You may be right about the Vols not being back on the beam. They have beaten Knoxville only 13 out of 16 games. If I am not mistaken, the Crackers beat them 20 out of 22 last year.

"Keep your chin up and I'll see you at the all-star game in any place except Little Rock. It would never do for either of us to go there. The bug house is just over the right-field fence, you know.

"Regretfully yours,

"RAYMOND."

That Dr. Murphy business was started by Joe Engel. He overheard a Massachusetts matron mistake me for a home-town doctor, and ever since he has been addressing me as "Dr. Murphy," and adding, "horse doctor is more like it."

But we're in the second division, men; and folks are really taking notice. Winning had become commonplace, so matter-of-fact. Rivals are indulging in a heap of wishful thinking.

Twins Sign Up Ray and Ralph Satterfield, twin brothers and star athletes of Jordan High, Columbus, and formerly of Atlanta, have been signed to baseball contracts by the Birmingham Barons. They're the first Atlanta boys (by proxy) a Birmingham club has recruited in the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

Riddle, a Columbus boy, has separated the twins. He sent Ray, promising left-handed pitcher, to Cordele, and Ralph, a shortstop, to Roanoke, Va. The boys parted reluctantly but realized that, in pro ball, they must make their way separately.

Jordan High previously had contributed Junior Wilson to pro ball, Junior signing with Danville, Va., and a fourth athlete, Jimmy Gurley, turned down a contract from Springfield, Mass. It all speaks well for the coaching of B. F. Register, who arranged the tryouts for the Satterfield twins.

Staff Is Shot From what one hears, Coach Frank Thomas is making every effort to obtain a first-rate line coach to replace the ever-reliable Hank Crisp, who is enrolled in the Navy athletic program. Thomas' staff has been completely depleted. He is the only one of the regulars left. Paul Burnum is left to coach the freshmen.

Coach Tommy made an offer to a well known line coach of our section, but must look elsewhere for aid. His offer was politely refused for reason of loyalty of the line coach to his present school.

An offer to a head coach, reliably reported, also was politely refused. It all goes to show, however, that the Thomas man is working. Alabama's got the material but it's still got to be coached, and it is more than a one-man job.

GAMES WANTED.

Harvey Peppers, manager of the East Point Guards baseball nine, would like to schedule games with any amateur team within 100 miles of Atlanta. Peppers can be reached by phone at CA. 4443. His home is 407 Harris street, East Point.

So He Was Out Right on Schedule

FORT LAVENWORTH, Kan., June 18.—(P)—Red Custerbinder hit a double and slid into second, 5 feet ahead of the throw, in an Army-Post game here.

The umpire called him out. Red didn't complain. The umpire was a sergeant.

Lieutenant Pat Flynn, Brooklyn, N. Y., coach of the team, stormed over to the umpire.

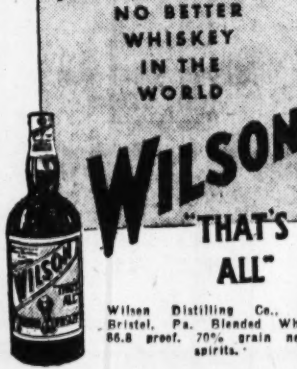

"Aw, I know," the ump whistled. "But Red and I have to be in Topeka by 6 o'clock."

Scribe Is Named Georgia Official

WICHITA, Kan., June 18.—(P) Rudy Brown, sports editor of the Thomsville, Ga., Times-Enterprise, has been named commissioner of semiprofessional baseball for the state of Georgia, the National Semipro Baseball Congress announced today.

As a result the sixth annual Georgia championship semipro baseball tournament to certify the state champions further in the national program, with the United States championship series here, August 14 to 26, will take place at Thomsville, starting July 16.

Chicks Hand Crackers 7 to 5 Defeat

Atlanta Makes 4 Costly Errors In 1st of Series

Lochbaum Loser as Mates Blow Sky-High Behind Him.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 18.—The Crackers graciously donated a game to the Chicks tonight, 7 to 5, by kicking across exactly five of the Memphis runs.

That opened the series sadly for Paul Richards and even more sadly for Emil Lochbaum, who didn't pitch badly at all and yet lost it. Four errors behind him, two in one big sixth inning that allowed three Chicks to score, did the dirty work.

The Crackers got all their runs off Wimpy Willis, bunching eight of their 11 hits off him. George Woods, the middle Chick pitcher, was the winner. Gene Lambert finished. Lochbaum gave the Chicks nine hits in the seven innings he toiled, with Ed Nowak pitching the eighth.

The teams resume action tomorrow night, with Rep Rambert due to toss for the Crackers and Frank Veverka for the Chicks.

Atlanta started the scoring in the first when Glock got a pop fly double back of third, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Scott's infield hit.

The Chicks came back with three in the second—largely chargeable to Lochbaum. He walked Veverka and Gautreaux with one away and after Hansen fanned, Willis scored. Veverka with a line drive down the right field line. Gautreaux taking third. Mauldin's infield hit scored C utreaux and Willis registered after Lochbaum had uncorked a wild pitch and Moore had booted Morris' grounder.

Atlanta got right back into the ball game in the fifth. With one down, Moore beat out a hit to short and went to third as Lochbaum lined a single into center. Glock walked to fill the bases and Moore scored on Letch's fly to right. Hodge dropped Brown's foul ball back of third and then Browne doubled to left center scoring Glock and routed Willis. George Wood entered the box and disposed of Woodall.

The Crackers went to pieces on one play to let the Chicks get in front again in the sixth. Gautreaux got a real hit and Hansen a fluke one. Schultz went in to run for Gautreaux and Graham hit for Wood. He bunted to Glock, who threw the ball past third, the two runners scoring and Graham going to third. When Letch's heaved the ball into the Chick dugout Graham limped on home.

Richards gave the Chicks a run in the seventh. Veverka's infield hit was followed by Schultz's crash into right, Veverka taking third. As Hansen struck out, Schultz and Veverka set out on a double steal, Veverka scoring when Richards dropped Moore throw.

IT'S LUCKY FOR HIM—Claude Passeau, Chicago Cub pitching ace, doesn't believe that old unlucky 13 business. In fact, he insists on wearing the jinx number on his uniform, and to date he has won 10 games and lost three for his second division club. That makes him the top pitcher in the major leagues.

Fists Fly as Dodgers Defeat Cardinals, 5-2

Medwick, Crespi Banished as Bums Take Series Opener Behind Larry French.

BROOKLYN, June 18.—(P)—Smashing across three runs in the eighth inning, the Brooklyn Dodgers stopped the St. Louis Cardinals' seven-game winning streak tonight with a 5-to-2 decision in a riotous ball game which was interrupted by fist fighting in the sixth inning.

Larry French went the route for the Dodgers and John Beazley, who relieved Max Lanier in the sixth, was charged with the loss.

The feud between the Dodgers and Cardinals broke out on the second anniversary of Joe Medwick's "beating" by Bob Bowman, and two players were banished for a first fight which involved several members of both clubs.

In the sixth inning Medwick slid into second base with spikes high and Shortstop Martin Marion immediately pounced upon him. When they struggled to the first base line, Second Baseman Frank Crespi, of the Cards, landed a blow that dropped Medwick and within a few seconds every member of both squads was milling around between the pitcher's box and second base.

There was considerable hitting and jostling and the umpires were unable to clear the field for several minutes.

When play finally was resumed the umpires banished both Medwick and Crespi. Dixie Walker, one of the Dodgers' outfielders, had to withdraw because of an injury which he had suffered during the fracas.

CRANFORD LEADS.

P. G. Cranford fired a six over par 71 yesterday to take the lead in qualifying for the annual club championship at Candler Park. The qualifying round closes Sunday night.

Jones Has 2-Under Par; 5 Strokes Off Hale's Pace

Crisman, Who Qualified Here, and Mike Turnesa Lead; 48 Break Par and 15 Equal It.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, June 18.—(P)—A little-known pro from Alabama and one of seven going Turnesa brothers posted low scores of 65 today in the opening 18-hole round of the Hale America National Open golf tournament at the Ridgemoor Country Club.

Otey Crisman, of Selma, Ala., up here "gallivanting around," came in with the first 65 and for four happy hours gloried in his lead, which appeared to be safe. Crisman qualified at Atlanta's East Lake Club.

But the firing wasn't over yet, for Crisman had overlooked little Mike Turnesa, of White Plains, N. Y., one of seven brothers, Mike, shooting a 34 on the first nine and a blistering 31 on the second, sneaked up to tie Crisman and thus the two led the field after 96 players—81 pros and 15 amateurs—had finished wrecking the course with sub-par golf. Eleven of 107 entrants withdrew.

Forty-eight players ripped par to pieces and 15 equalled it. Par for the compact little 6,519-yard layout is 72, but that's for the club members and not for the golfing slickers who trampled over it today.

FIVE BIRDIES.

Crisman had five birdies on the back nine, while Turnesa scored six.

Grouped two strokes behind Turnesa and the drawing Alabamian were five players—Lawson Little, of Monterey, Cal., 1940 National Open champion; Al Brosch, Farmingdale, N. Y.; Lighthorse Harry Cooper, Minneapolis, Minn.; Lloyd Mangrum, Monterey Park, Cal., and Mike Sipula, of Ottawa, Illinois.

Another group of six were in the 68 Bracket—they were Dick Metz, Oak Park, Ill.; Herman Barron, White Plains, N. Y.; Jimmy Demaret, Redford, Mich.; George Schreier, veteran pro of Ogden, Utah; Wilford Wehrle, Racine, Wis., lowest shooter of the 15 amateurs, and the veteran Horton Smith, Pinchurst, N. C.

The 40-year-old Captain Robert T. Jones, making his first competitive appearance in Chicago since 1928, reeled off a 70, two under par. The former grand slam champion was out in 35, one under, with birdies on the first and fifth and a bogie on the seventh, and had a 35 on the way home.

"It was as good as I had hoped to do," Jones said.

CROWD CHEERS.

A large and lively gallery of 6,000 was grouped around the 18th when Jones finished, and gave him a rousing ovation.

Lawson Little was the first of the parading par breakers to hang up a 32 for his opening nine, blowing an easy chance for a 31 when he three-putted the 335-yard ninth. He started off with four straight birdies. The former U. S. Open and Amateur and British Amateur titleholder came galloping home with a 67, five under par, with the tale of missing four putts of three feet or less.

Drying Vegetables

This year, more than ever before, your government is asking you to can and in other ways to conserve for winter use all the fruits, vegetables and berries you possibly can manage. Every home economist has been racking her brain for ways of helping the homekeeper with this gigantic home canning program which you must, as your part of the war effort, undertake. Miss Katherine Lanier, food preservation specialist of the Agricultural Extension Service, University of Georgia, met in Atlanta recently with home economists to show us what she and her staff have done in the drying of fruits and vegetables. Rather unbelievable were the bits of vegetables, dried to but a fraction of their former size, but when they were soaked in cold water a few hours they magically returned to their original size, shape and color. Miss Lanier believes that the drying of fruits and vegetables may become increasingly important as a means of conserving cans and jars for things that cannot be successfully dried, and because larger quantities of food can be stored when dried than when combined with liquids. Green beans, lima beans, carrots, corn, okra, peas, squash had been successfully dried by Miss Lanier's staff. Vegetables to be dried are prepared as if for canning. They are washed, then peeled and sliced or cut into desired lengths. Corn was cut from the cob in whole grains. The vegetables then were blanched or steamed for 10 to 15 minutes, then immediately put on a rack covered with cheesecloth in an oven with temperature at approximately 150 degrees. Here, is Miss Lanier's statement on drying vegetables.

Some High Points on Drying.

"In drying, it is important to blanch food at an even temperature. Blanching may be done by steaming or by plunging into boiling water, or by pressure cooking. Blanching by steam is preferable to the hot water method. Steaming leaves the vegetable high in vitamin and mineral content. To steam vegetables for drying: Put inch of water in a large container; place prepared vegetables on rack inside small container set inside large one. No water touches the vegetable, but steam should circulate all around it. Cover the big kettle with a close-fitting lid and count steaming time after water comes to a boil and kettle is full of steam.

Vegetables may be dried in the sun, but it is necessary to have a circulation of air under and above the products drying. They need to be put on a rack with a clean cloth under and above, such as cheesecloth, which lets the air through. After drying in the sun, the product should be placed in the oven for a few minutes to kill any small insect or larvae. If you dry in the oven, start the temperature at 110 to 120 degrees and gradually increase the heat up to 140 to 155. Dry the vegetables until when pressed in the hand there is no indication of moisture.

After vegetables are dried they should be placed in cans, jars or crocks that have close fitting covers.

Canning Without Sugar

To Can Fruits With Honey.

Light, mild-flavored, strained honey can be used successfully for home canning. Honey tends to change the flavor and color of fruit, though the changed flavor mostly is pleasing and the darker color is not objectionable.

To make syrup for fruits, use equal parts honey and water for very acid fruits, and two parts water to one part honey for less acid fruits and berries. Boil water and honey together two minutes. Drop prepared fruit or berries in syrup, simmer until heated through, pack into hot, sterilized jars and seal. Process jars: for apples 25 minutes, berries 7 minutes, cherries 15 minutes, peaches 15 minutes, plums 15 minutes.

To Can With Corn Syrup.

Corn syrup is less sweet than sugar. Make syrup by boiling corn syrup and water together 3 minutes, the proportion to meet any preference, and proceed as directed above.

Berry Jams.

(Without Sugar.) Wash and crush berries. Cook until soft. Press through a strainer, if you want to remove seeds. Add 1-4 pound sugar and 1-2 pound corn syrup or 3-4 pound strained honey to each pound of berries. Cook until of desired consistency. Measure may be used instead of weights, but weights give better results. One pint, or two cups, solid, is the equivalent of one pound.

Miss Rene Tuck, a home economist, poses with samples of dried vegetables and, in the deep bowls, these vegetables being soaked in cold water to bring them back to their original size and color. More about vegetables in columns left, above.

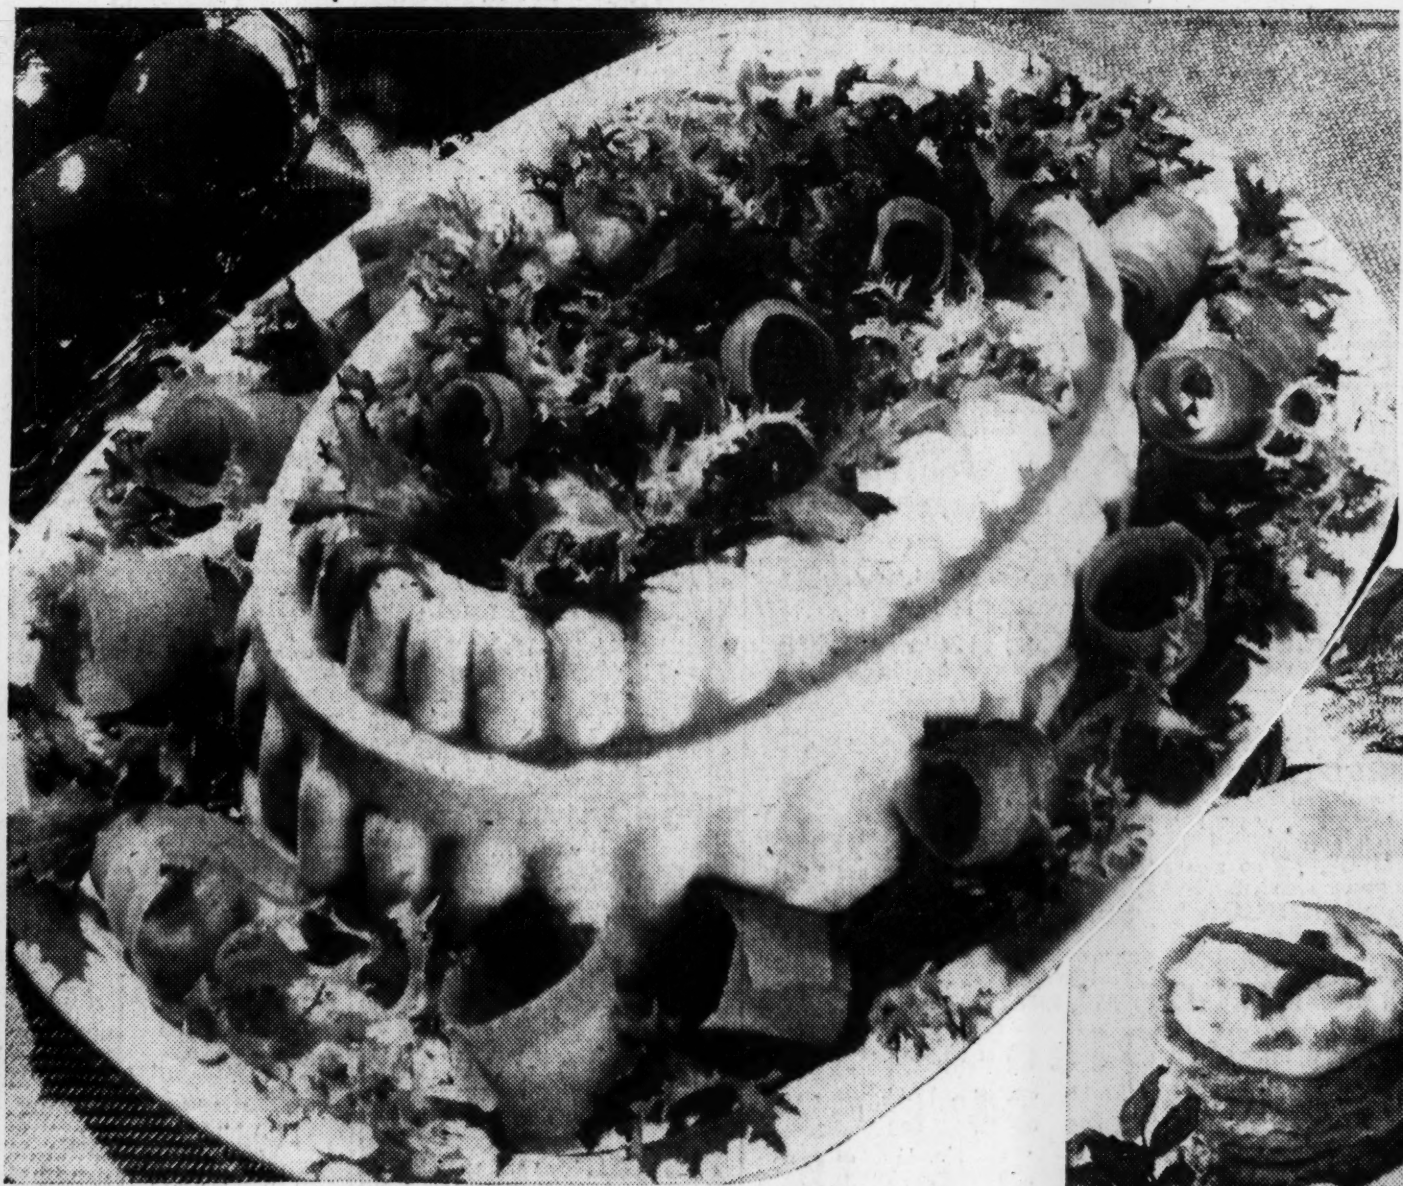

Place sausage links in cold skillet. Add two tablespoons water, cover and brown slowly. Remove from pan and pour off all but two tablespoons fat. Add tomatoes and onions and simmer until tender. Reheat sausage in tomato mixture. Make a ring of peas around edge of shallow baking dish. Arrange sausage and tomato sauce in center. Cover peas with spaghetti and sprinkle with cheese. Place under broiler until cheese melts and browns slightly.

Treasure Basket Salad

Submitted by Miss Miriam Pritchard, Stonewall, Ga.

8 medium tomatoes.
3-4 pound cottage cheese.
4 tablespoons mayonnaise.
3-8 teaspoon onion, grated.
1-8 teaspoon salt.
1-8 teaspoon pepper.
1-2 Spanish onion, sliced and separated into rings.
1 large green pepper and 1 sweet red pepper cut into rings.
Lettuce.

Cut a slice off stem end of tomatoes, remove seeds and invert to drain. Mix cottage cheese with mayonnaise, grated onions and seasonings and fill tomatoes. Replace tops on tomatoes. Arrange with onion and pepper rings on lettuce leaves. Serve with mayonnaise to which may be added ground nut meats.

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

Chilled Pepper Rings.
2 large green peppers.
2 packages (3 ounces) cream cheese.
1-3 cup mayonnaise.
1-4 cup stuffed olives.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
Dash of pepper.

Wash peppers, cut off tops and remove seeds; chop tops for filling. Mash cream cheese and mix to a paste with mayonnaise. Add olives, chopped, chopped green pepper, salt and dash of pepper and mix thoroughly. Pack into green peppers and chill. Slice thin and arrange on bed of crisp lettuce. Serve with Russian dressing.

Save all the excess juices from jars of pickles, relishes and olives and use it for the liquid called for in boiled and French salad dressing to be served on fish, meat or vegetable salads.

Banana Cream Pie.
3 tablespoons margarine.
1 1/2 cups milk.
1 1/2 teaspoon salt.
3 tablespoons flour.
1 egg yolk.
1/4 teaspoon vanilla.
1 9-inch pie shell, baked.
3 large bananas.
Whipped cream.

Scald 1 cup milk over hot water. Mix sugar, salt and flour, and add to it 1/2 cup cold milk, stirring until smoothly mixed. Stir this mixture into the hot milk and cook, stirring, until thickened.

Cover and let cook about 3 minutes. Stir a little of the hot mixture into egg yolk and add this to hot mixture. Cook 1 minute longer. Add margarine and flavoring. Cool. Fill baked pie shell with alternate layers of filling and sliced bananas. Top with whipped cream or meringue.

Save lemon halves after the juice has been used. They make helpful bleaches to remove stains from the hands, brown spots from table linens and clothing and dark streaks from cooking utensils.

Minerals so needed in hot weather are stepped up in jelly fruit salads or desserts when some stewed rhubarb sauce is added to the fruits. The flavor is delightful.

Sauce for Cooked Vegetables. Fresh asparagus, broccoli and boiled cabbage should be enlivened occasionally by a cheese sauce. Try this:

1 tablespoon butter.
1/2 cups finely diced American cheese.
1/4 teaspoon salt.
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
1 teaspoon prepared mustard.
3-4 cup evaporated milk.
Melt butter and cheese in top of double boiler over hot water; keep heat fairly low. Add salt, sauce and mustard. Blend thoroughly before stirring in milk. Heat to boiling point and remove quickly. Yields 2 1/2 cups sauce.

Bridal Parties

Chances are, with so many brides and brides-to-be, that you will be giving a party for one of these starry-eyed lassies. Informal entertaining and prettiness without lavishness or ostentation, is the order of the day, and a simple buffet supper with enough gala touches to mark it as a special event is one of the easiest forms of entertainment. Buffet suppers are always successful if, (1) you provide a menu simple enough to be served and eaten without undue difficulty, and (2) you provide enough places for the guests to sit down comfortably with their plates. Today I'm offering plans and a menu for a bridal buffet, supper serving 12 persons. This menu is quite party-like, though it is not expensive, and most of it can be prepared in advance, leaving the hostess free to enjoy her own party. The menu:

Cocktails (fruit juice or stronger, as you prefer)
Tray of canapés
and hors d'oeuvres
(Crisp potato chips, stuffed celery, carrot sticks, olives, cheese spread on crackers, etc.)
Hot creamed chicken, thin slices baked ham
Watermelon pickle, small hot rolls
Cream puff shells filled with fresh fruit and whipped cream

Hot or iced coffee or tea

The chicken and the ham may be cooked the day before and the creamed chicken mixture may be made several hours in advance and reheated just at serving time. The rolls have to be heated at the last minute, but they may be split and buttered and kept in the pan, covered with a damp towel until needed, then popped into the oven at the last moment. Make the cream puff shells in the morning and prepare the fruit then, too. Or you may prefer to buy ice cream to fill the shells and serve over the cream a fruit sauce.

Spread your daintiest and prettiest cloth on the dining table and for a centerpiece use a bowl of garden flowers, or use all white flowers surrounded by lots of cool, green leaves or trailing ivy. Use tall white candles, lighted of course, and perhaps a smiling, toy bride and groom among the flowers. Put up enough card tables in convenient places, spread these with small cloths and center each with a small bowl or vase of flowers. On the large table place the plates and silverware, leaving convenient places for the platters of food. The cocktails and appetizers should be served on the veranda or in the living room ahead of the rest of the menu.

The recipes you'll need, for serving 12 persons:

Creamed Chicken (for 12): Buy a stewing chicken weighing about 4 to 4 1/2 pounds, have it cleaned and cut in pieces. Wash in cold water, drain and put in a saucepan with just enough boiling water to cover it. Boil gently until tender, then cool and cut the meat in good sized dice. There should be about 1 quart of diced chicken. Melt 1-2 cup butter or margarine and add 1-2 cup finely cut celery. Simmer for 5 minutes, then stir in 1-2 cup flour and when well blended add 1 cup chicken stock and 3 cups milk or equal parts of milk and stock. Stir constantly until thickened, smooth and boiling. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add the chicken and reheat. Just before serving stir in 1-3 cup heavy cream.

Baked Ham: To serve 12 persons you will need about 5 pounds of baked ham.

Cream Puff Shells (for 12): Mix

1/2 cup butter or margarine with 2-3 cup boiling water and heat until the butter melts. Add 2-3 cup all-purpose flour, all at once, and stir constantly and rapidly until the mixture forms a paste ball that clings to the spoon. Remove at once from the fire and let stand for 5 minutes. Then add 3 unbeaten eggs, one at a time, and beat each one thoroughly into the mixture before adding the next. This is important in making the puffs light. The mixture should form a smooth, thick, velvety batter. Drop from a tablespoon onto a greased cookie sheet or shallow baking pan, shaping the batter into a round, slightly higher in the center than on the sides, and allowing at least two inches between each one for spreading. Bake in a moderately hot oven—375 degrees—for 40 to 45 minutes or until the puffs are well risen, firm and dry. For serving cut around the top of each puff, remove any soft crumb, fill with whipped cream and fresh fruit or with ice cream. Put the top back on if you wish, or leave the filling exposed and garnish with fresh fruit or a little cream put through the pastry tube.

Main Dishes for a Bridal Luncheon.

If it's a bridal luncheon you have in mind, with all women guests, perhaps you'd like to serve either of the dainty foods pictured below for the main dish. Here are the recipes for them:

CHICKEN MOUSSE.
(Serves 6 or 8)
2 cans condensed chicken soup
2 eggs, separated
1-2 tablespoons plain gelatin, softened in 1-4 cup cold water
1-2 cup diced chicken
1-2 cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons parsley, chopped
1 tablespoon pimiento, chopped
1-4 teaspoon powdered mace

Sprinkle the gelatin in the cold water and allow to soften. Strain soup and heat liquid part in double boiler. Add chicken to the solids strained from soup and put all through the food chopper, using fine blade. Beat egg yolks, add hot soup and mace to them, then cook this mixture 5 to 8 minutes in double boiler. Pour the hot mixture over gelatin and stir until dissolved. Chill until mixture begins to thicken, then fold in beaten egg whites, whipped cream and chicken mixture. Pour into a mold and chill until firm. To serve, unmold on a platter of greens and garnish celery curls. Spiced or pickled fruit is an excellent accompaniment.

VEAL A LA KING.
(Serves 8)

2 cups cooked veal (or chicken, diced)
1 cup chicken broth
1-2 cups rich milk
1-2 cup butter or margarine
5 tablespoons flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 1-2 cups mushrooms, sliced
3 tablespoons green pepper, chopped
2 egg yolks
1-3 cup sherry
Patty shells, or toast points
Strips of pimiento for garnish
Melt 1-4 cup of butter and blend in the flour. Add hot chicken broth and the milk and cook slowly, stirring until thickened. Add salt and cubed veal. Saute mushrooms and green pepper in remaining butter and add it to the cream mixture. Pour hot mixture over egg yolks, and return to fire and cook one minute, stirring constantly. Add pimiento and sherry. Serve hot in patty shells or on toast points.

Above: A chicken mousse is pretty indeed molded in a fancy mold and garnished with salad greens and carrot curls. To make carrot curls, slice carrots paper thin and drop in ice water.

A dainty dish for all-feminine guests is veal a la king in patty shells. Watercress and strips of pimiento are used for garnish.

J. Allen Couch Seeks Post as Commissioner

Announces Candidacy Expressing Opposition to New Taxes.

J. Allen Couch yesterday announced his candidacy for the post on the Fulton county commission held since 1935 by Commissioner E. L. Almand. Couch has been a member of the city council for more than 15 years, having served on all its committees and as chairman of most of them. He was mayor pro tem. in 1929. For 15 years he has been a member of the finance committee, and is now chairman of the tax committee.

In his announcement, Couch expressed opposition to any new taxes and interference with the administrative branch of the county government.

"The board of commissioners," he said, "should perform only legislative and policy-making functions as provided by law, leaving administrative heads free to perform their duties. It shall be my purpose, if elected, to break any and all political shackles that are binding the other county government departments and end all unwarranted interference. In this way only is it possible to have an efficient, smoothly working county administration."

Couch also opposed any move to lower homestead exemptions, which he termed an underhanded way of raising more revenue.

"I shall be consistent," the candidate added, "in any matter on which the commission must take any definite stand. On the other hand, my opponent has been on every side of almost every major issue ever since he has been in office. I have never made a promise that I did not carry out."

Couch, an undertaker by profession, resides at 479 Ponders avenue, N. W., in the third ward.

Clarence Duncan, who recently announced his candidacy for county commissioner-at-large against Chairman Troy Chastain, yesterday qualified for the primary by paying his $300 fee to J. Wilson Parker, secretary of the county Democratic executive committee.

Has Anybody Here Seen Claudia Mae?

Where is Claudia Mae?

If anybody has seen her please call Marvin Cox, the harried information man of the Office of Emergency Management.

Addressed to Cox as a "war question" deserving his immediate attention was a query about Claudia Mae's whereabouts.

"She left Tuskegee June 7, and no one knows where she went. Please look for her all over your town and let me know if she is there."

Cox has a fairly sketchy description of Claudia Mae he will be glad to share with any volunteers who join the search.

Fulton Primary Will Be Held September 9

Committee Schedules Voting Same Day as State Primary.

The Fulton county Democratic executive committee yesterday decided to hold the county primary September 9, the same day of the state primary.

Closing date for entering the race was fixed at 2 o'clock of the afternoon of July 4. Fees to be required of the various candidates also were voted.

The committee met at the courthouse, Chairman J. Schley Thompson presiding and the resolution fixing the rules of the primary was introduced by Vice Chairman William A. Lynn. Thirty-six members were present.

The transportation problem and the fact that there are only a few county offices to be filled were given as reason for holding the county and state primaries on the same date.

The fee for entering the contests for county commissioner was placed at $300, that for the two judgeships of the Fulton county civil court $600 and that for the three judgeships of the superior court $500.

These fees are in addition to the assessment of $250 made by the state Democratic executive committee.

The fee for the civil court was made higher than that for the superior court because the former offices are for six-year terms. Fee for the three offices of representative in the general assembly was set at $150 each.

Hours Set

Polling places are to remain open from 8 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock at night, and the subcommittee on rules was instructed to meet at committee headquarters, 129 1-2 Pryor street, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, July Fourth.

Three county commissioners, two court judges, and three representatives are to be nominated at the primary.

H. E. Ivey, W. W. Wilson and T. A. Burdette were elected to vacancies on the executive committee.

The committee heard Mrs. J. L. Garmon, Fulton county registrar, explain the new law under which this year's primary is to be held.

She suggested the voting take place at public schools, but objections resulted in the matter being referred to the committee on rules with power to act.

Chairman of the Rules Committee Lynn said the new law would complicate the primary and urged that voters bear this in mind in going to the polls.

Pace Qualifies For Re-election In 3rd District

President Lauded by Committee Meeting Held in Americus.

AMERICUS, Ga., June 18.—(AP) Representative Stephen Pace, of the third Georgia district, has qualified for re-election to the 78th congress.

The district Democratic executive committee meeting here set the district primary for September 9 and fixed the qualifying deadline at 2 p. m. (EWT) July 4. The county unit system will govern voting.

The qualifying fee, $500, doubles the sum charged in the last primary. Pace is the only candidate to qualify so far.

A resolution adopted by the committee praised President Roosevelt and pledged "our obedience to his command, our sincere loyalty, all we possess, and, if need be, our lives, to the end that victory may crown our arms and peace and good will may soon return to the earth."

Another adopted resolution commended the record of Representative Pace and urged that he "continue to serve as our representative in congress and give us the benefit of his great energy, efficiency, statesmanship, and the fine experience which he has gained and which is so important during these critical days."

W. H. Young Jr., of Columbus, chairman, presided.

Store Manager Is Accused in 'Fake' Holdup

Three Others Are Bound
Over in Connection
With Theft Here.

L. H. Nelms, manager of the Emory Five and Ten Store, 124 Decatur St., S. E., has been bound over by Judge A. W. Callaway in recorder's court in connection with the robbery of the store on June 2. His bond was set at $1,000.

Three Negroes were also bound over and their bond was placed at $500 each.

The charge lodged against Nelms was disorderly conduct, robbery and Roy Tyler, 28, and Alexander Hall, 32, both Negroes, are being held on charges of suspicion of robbery. The third Negro, Howard Small, 30, is being held on suspicion of holdup.

According to E. H. Harkins and P. E. Jones, city detectives, the three Negroes have admitted taking part in the robbery of the store, but implicated Nelms in their confession. Nelms, the detectives said, contacted Tyler, who, in turn, got Hall and Small to stage the holdup, which netted about $300. The police report of the robbery states the sum taken was $300.

Harkins and Jones said Nelms failed to identify any of the three Negroes in a lineup. Nelms, they said, told them none of the three fitted the description of the Negro who held him up. The detectives said a clerk in the store, Flora Lockwood, 22, of 138 Peachtree View, in Brookhaven, positively identified Small as the one with the pistol.

The $30 taken was split between Hall and Small, the detectives said.

13th Cargo Ship Of Week Lost in Atlantic Waters

Norwegian Vessel Sunk
Near Shore in Gulf of Mexico.

By The Associated Press.

At least 71 men lost their lives and 11 were missing from 13 merchant vessels reported this week as victims of enemy submarines in the Atlantic, but more than 419 seamen and passengers survived the attacks.

Latest vessel sent to the bottom was a small Norwegian one whose loss was announced yesterday. The sinking brought the officially reported total of United and neutral nations' merchant ship losses in Atlantic waters since December 7 to 277 vessels.

The submarine attack on the Norwegian vessel June 14 in the Gulf of Mexico took place so near shore that her 20 survivors rowed their crowded lifeboat into harbor 18 hours later. A single torpedo sank the ship in three minutes, killing two crewmen and injuring four others. The submarine was not seen either before or after the attack.

Meanwhile, newspapers at Bogota, Colombia, printed reports expressing their belief that canonading heard Wednesday night off the Colombian coast resulted from a clash between United States destroyers and Axis submarines.

That 36 men had survived the torpedoing a week ago of the 8,000-ton United States freighter Lebor was disclosed by the Bogota newspaper El Liberal, quoting Ernesto Ruiz White, Governor of the Colombian island of St. Andrew. White said also that 40 crewmen from the Chrysler, a North American vessel, had been rescued near St. Andrew. (Lloyd's lists no ship of this name).

Aiding the United States in combating the submarine menace, Mexico's patrol planes were scouring the Gulf of Mexico and Pacific, under orders to "sink on sight" all prowling undersea craft.

GEORGIANS SAVED.

LAGRANGE, Ga., June 18.—Two LaGrange boys, Charlie Fincher and Willard Alfred Allman, who were on board the Lexington, have been reported as saved. Fincher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allie Fincher and Allman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allman.

War Work Seen For Prison Press

REIDSVILLE, Ga., June 18.—(AP) The big steel press used here at the state prison, one of the few of its type in the country, will be shipped to the west coast to speed the construction of war vital merchant ships.

A War Production Board official wrote Royal K. Mann, of Atlanta, chairman of the State Prison and Parole Commission, that acquisition of the machine by a shipbuilding company "will result in an overall saving of 704 working days in the completion of 88 Liberty ships under contract by them."

The six-foot press brake, used by the prisoners to fashion guard rails, road signs and automobile tags out of steel, is said to be one of the largest in the country.

Mann said that the state had agreed to sell it for about $11,000. "That's the ceiling price," he added, "and just about what the state paid for it."

Guatemala has enacted an anti-profiteering law.

FUSE PLANT WORK.

SPARTA, Ga., June 18.—Numbers of women for this city and Hancock county are employed in the Navy fuse plant in Macon and many others expect to get employment in the similar plant which is being erected near Milledgeville. The women took a special training course before they were employed in the plant.

Youths To Register On June 29 and 30

Georgia youths 18 to 20 years of age will be required to register at local draft boards on June 29 and 30, according to a proclamation sent to the boards yesterday. The 18- and 19-year-olds, under present law, will not be called to active duty until they reach their twentieth birthday.

Colonel Cliff Hatcher, of the State Selective Service headquarters, said local draft boards, instead of school teachers, will handle the registration because of the comparatively small number affected, about 46,000, according to Hatcher.

NAMED ON BOARD.

Desert, Jungle Tactics Planned For Maneuvers

Summer War Games To Provide 'Most Thorough Training.'

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Four months of intensive war-time field maneuvers, stressing desert and jungle fighting and joint operations by air and ground forces, will open for a large portion of the expanding army July 13.

Secretary Stimson announced this schedule today. Six Army Corps, each of two or more divisions, will undergo the training, in the south and west.

Aimed at providing "the most thorough training ever developed for American troops, the maneuvers will help condition troops both mentally and physically for the job that lies ahead," the war secretary said.

Stimson announced at the same time that new tasks had been defined for the state guards formed to take the place of National Guard units now in national service.

The Army is to provide part-time instructors to give realistic training, whenever they can be spared, through the commanders of the Army's nine corps areas.

A new War Department directive said the state guardsmen would be expected to deal with disturbances and disasters, to guard vital facilities, assist military police, suppress enemy agents, and cope with parachute troops.

Independent Offices Money Bill Approved

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Members of a joint senate-house committee agreed today on the $2,126,420,890 independent offices appropriation bill, carrying funds for various bureaus, boards, and commissions for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The senate group gave way to the house on the proposal of Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, to prohibit the Tennessee Valley Authority from grouping its power receipts and appropriations into a single revolving fund. McKellar's proposal was designed to restrict TVA's expenditures to appropriations previously approved by congress. Under the conference agreement TVA may use the revolving fund.

Freight Cars Must Do More, Shippers Told

Colonel Robert Henry Addresses Southeast Board Meeting.

Colonel Robert S. Henry, of Washington, assistant to the president of the Association of American Railroads, declared yesterday "we shall simply have to get more work out of our freight cars."

In an address before a luncheon session of the 59th regular meeting of the Southeast Shippers' Advisory Board, at the Ansley hotel, Henry said "the average freight car in 1941 did the work of one and one-third cars in 1929, and nearly as much as one and three-fourths cars did in the war year of 1918. The average freight car in 1942, since Pearl Harbor, is doing a lot more work than it did in 1941."

"With only 10 per cent more loaded cars so far this year," Henry reported, "the production of ton-miles of transportation service is 30 per cent ahead of the same weeks of last year."

Demand Increases. Henry said that "in three years since 1939, the transportation demand on the railroads has gone up more than 80 per cent—not far from doubled."

He said the demand has been met "because the railroads have increased the number of serviceable locomotives by about 3,700 in that time, and the number of serviceable freight cars by about 235,000."

"But war production will keep on increasing and rubber will keep on wearing out and the load for the railroads to carry will keep on increasing," he declared.

"For their major business of handling freight, the railroads have tried to get more cars and locomotives. Other war needs are such, however, that the War Production Board has not been able to allocate to railroad uses the materials it would take to build all the equipment needed," Henry added.

Bigger Job Ahead. "That means then that we—and by 'we' I mean not just the railroads but the shipper-railroad-receiver transportation team—shall

Catholics Change Rules for Military

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP)—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, of New York, military vicar of the Catholic churches in the United States, announced today that afternoon and evening masses would be permitted for men in the U. S. armed services who could not attend morning mass.

Church officials said that this was possibly the first time such permission had been granted in this country.

The permission is granted by decree of the Sacred Congregation of the Sacraments, a department of the Vatican.

Rigid restrictions guard the privilege against any danger of laxity or irreverence, the archbishop said.

The dispensation came in response to pleas of both chaplains and men for greater opportunities for daily mass, the archbishop said, adding that they had given evidence of their desire to sacrifice their afternoon recreation hour to attend mass and receive holy communion.

The announcement said both the celebrant and the communicants must fast four hours from solid foods, and one hour from liquids.

have to do the bigger job ahead not with what we should like to have in the way of equipment, but with what we can get."

As for passenger travel, he declared, "no doubt there will be more passengers to carry, though how many more is anyone's guess, and there won't be any more cars or trains in which to carry them."

There may be fewer, indeed, as more and more equipment is needed for the railroads' No. 1 passenger job of moving troops. But we hope that the railroads will be able to get people where they have to go even though with less comfort and convenience than they would like."

Earlier, in his report as general chairman, R. A. McCaffery, of Birmingham, Ala., southern traffic manager of the United States Pipe & Foundry Company, said "the task ahead is a big one, and will demand the full and impartial cooperation of every type of industry and every form of transportation."

Horseshoe Fashion Note: Chignons Are Very Chic

Big Clydesdales Parade Here and Boost Sale of War Bonds.

By FRANK DRAKE.

Fashion note to the ladies: If you want to see the very latest thing in chic hairdos, take a look at the six-horse team of big Clydesdales visiting Atlanta this week in the interest of war bonds and stamps.

Their manes are done up in true pikaninny style with every little bob of hair standing just at the right angle.

Those are hardies any woman could envy—even on a horse. The tails are carefully combed and the hair is brushed and twisted into upright chignons (twisted Fashion Editor Winifred Ware says means knots formed by twisting up the ends of long hair), and more than that, other strands of hair are plaited so tightly with gay ribbons they stand out of the hairdo like the horns of an antelope.

Help War Bond Sale.

The huge horses, weighing approximately a ton each, attracted a large crowd when they stopped on downtown streets yesterday, while John Fulton and Frank Gaither, assisted by the Rainbow Girls, sold nearly $800 worth of war stamps and bonds in less than an hour.

The parade will continue tomorrow over the city today and tomorrow for war bonds and stamps, just to let city folks see what real big horses are like.

The horses are from Chicago and there are eight of them here—all stopping at the Biltmore garage.

Mingled Smells.

It was like going back to the good old days to visit them in their stables. It reminded you, seeing horses parked side by side with cars, of the olden days when people stored their newfangled autos in the barn because garages hadn't been built. Once again, as in the old days, the barn smell of horses mingled with the fumes of gas and oil.

John Jarard, of New Sharon, Iowa, is driver of the six-horse team that'll jog downtown today at the rate of 3 1/2 miles per hour. The two other horses are spares—like autoists carry a couple of extra tires in case of trouble—that is, if they are lucky enough to have spares.

Horses Gentle. He says the big draft horses, all geldings, are gentle as lambs, but they prance with pride of wild stallions when they are all dolled up in ribbons and lace and are on exhibition. It only takes four men two hours and 10 minutes of fast work to dress the six-horse team for a public appearance—and they won't show them unless every horse is washed, combed, curried, brushed, dusted off, dried behind the ears and has every loose hair tied up neatly in a hair ribbon.

Scores of people streamed through the garage to see them yesterday. W. H. Chambers, garage manager, said:

"Most all the people speak to the big horses and call them by names hung over each horse's parking space, Lochinvar, Highland Chief, Craigie, Malcolm, Rob Roy, MacArthur, Sir Robert and General. The horses never twitch an ear, though. The only names they know are Earl, Dean, Abe, Mac, Buster, King, Bob and Roy—the names Jarard uses in driving them."

The high-sounding aliases are just to keep the public from confusing the animals.

SWEDEN

Speaks

One of the ideas gaining ground with Swedish public opinion is the formation of a Scandinavian bloc after the war is over. Approximately one-half of all Swedes polled this week by the Svenska Gallup Institutet, the Gallup Poll of Sweden, want to see their country take the initiative in organizing closer collaboration among the Scandinavian nations after the war.

The poll asked: "Do you think Sweden ought to take the lead in organizing close collaboration among the northern countries when the war is over?"

Results were:

Yes	No	Undecided
49%	10%	41%

Commenting on the results, the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter declared editorially that an affirmative vote of nearly 50 per cent is "a fine result considering that the question is a new departure." Pointing out that the years of war experience have "set deep marks on the Swedish national mind," the paper warned that the future entails many practical problems of leadership for Sweden.

taxes or will have difficulty finding the money when it is due unless some systematic method such as the deduction plan is adopted.

Some employers are already using the plan when the employee requests it. The Treasury likewise issues tax certificates which income tax payers can purchase in advance and which are used in the payment of the tax.

Judging by the Institute survey, an increasing number of taxpayers are in favor of going even farther with plans for advance payments.

Gallup Poll Reveals:

Advance Paycheck Deductions To Meet Income Tax Favored

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 18.—

The quarterly federal income tax headache would be eliminated for many people if taxpayers with steady jobs had their way.

Instead of the present scheme of annual or quarterly payment dates, fully half those taxpayers who are regularly employed would like to have a regular amount deducted from each pay check in advance to meet the next year's income tax.

That is what a representative cross-section of taxpayers throughout the country told field reporters for the Institute this week.

Treasury officials will be particularly interested in the results because the pay roll deduction tax plan is one which has been carefully considered of late, both in congress and among tax experts. The fact which will especially interest the Treasury is that there has been an increase in sentiment for this plan in the past four months.

In February and again this week the Institute put the following question to employed persons who said they would have to pay a federal income tax next year:

"Would you like to have a regular amount deducted from each pay check to pay your federal income tax next year?"

The reaction last February and today is shown below:

	Feb.	Today.
Favor	45%	50%
Opposed	45%	43%
Undecided	10%	7%

The pay roll deduction principle has certain definite advantages for the Treasury, chief among which is that it would enable the government to collect income tax money much earlier.

Advocates of the plan also argue that because future income taxes are going to be heavy on the "little fellow," a growing number will find that they either cannot pay

Documents Put On Record in Blalock Case

State Introduces Highway Department Requisitions.

Offering in evidence of State Highway Department requisitions took up most of the day in the trial in Fulton superior court yesterday of Bruck Blalock, machinery dealer, charged with conspiracy to defraud the state.

As the defense made no objection to the requisitions, Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, presiding, excused defense attorneys until today while the state continued to put the documents on the record.

One witness yesterday was H. S. Anderson, machinery expert for the federal government, who explained machinery specifications and what various machines could do. Another was C. B. Smith, highway engineer since 1923, who testified he served on a committee to prepare specifications for machines to be used by the Highway Department in 1939 and 1940.

He said he had refused to approve specifications for tractors and graders because he considered them "closed," that is, that there could be no competition among bidders.

The state charges Blalock, former Governor Rivers and others conspired to "close" specifications for machinery so Blalock would be successful bidder.

RETREAT PARADE—The three battalions garrisoned at Fort McPherson were reviewed yesterday by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, at retreat parade. Observing the troops as they marched to the jaunty tunes of the Reception Center band are (left to right) Lieutenant W. P. Laughton, Captain W. F. Catron, Colonel Clifford C. Early, Dr. Brittain and Major C. V. Caldwell. The retreat was first of a series.

Brittain Honor Guest at Fort Retreat Parade

Three Crack Battalions Take Part; Event To Be Held Weekly.

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, reviewed three crack battalions, comprising the entire garrison of Fort McPherson, on formal retreat parade yesterday as they marched in perfect time to stirring patriotic tunes played by the Reception Center band.

In addition to the guest of honor, Colonel Clifford C. Early, post commanding officer, and Captain W. F. Catron, executive officer, were in the reviewing stand as the trim, orderly troops filed by, "eyes right."

A shrieking siren and the terrific explosion of a cannon forecast regulation ceremonies. As several hundred raw recruits looked on, admiring and baffled, an armed color guard and troops of three battalions marched around a huge square marked off by small flags.

Major C. V. Caldwell commanded the troops while the battalions were headed by Captain John P. McFarland, First Battalion, Headquarters Troops, Third Army Corps; Captain Arnold F. Reiber, Second Battalion, Reception Center Troops, and Major L. M. Davis, Third Battalion, Station Complement Troops.

The Adjutant, Lieutenant M. A. Hagerstrand, inspected the guard as Captain James H. Hogan replaced Lieutenant W. E. Whitlock as officer of the day in an impressive formal guard mount ceremony.

This parade was the first of a series to be held each Thursday afternoon, to which the public is invited. Some celebrity will review the troops each week as guest of honor.

Captain To Tell How To Combat War Gas

Latest methods of combating war gases will be demonstrated and explained by Captain Ralph Gould, of Fort McPherson, chemical warfare officer of the fourth corps area, at 8 o'clock next Wednesday night at Bass Junior High school, it was announced yesterday by Brigadier General E. G. Peyton, commander of Atlanta's civilian defense organization.

The meeting, the first of a series of similar gatherings, will be open to the public and General Peyton urged attendance of all air raid wardens, auxiliary firemen and policemen and other civilian volunteers.

Captain of Marblehead Named Rear Admiral

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP) Captain Arthur Granville Robinson, who brought the damaged United States cruiser Marblehead safely home to America after a battle with Japanese aircraft, was nominated by President Roosevelt to be a rear admiral.

Robinson, whose "usual address" was listed as the "Bureau of Personnel, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.," is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Ellis Assails Opponents of Relief to Needy

Problem One Requiring Careful Study, Administrator Says.

Statements of two members indicating that the present Fulton county grand jury favors spending more tax money on parks and amphitheater chairs and even less than the dole of $3.95 per month per person on direct relief drew a reply yesterday from Wellborn Ellis, relief administrator.

Ellis said that he would welcome any information about clients using relief money for the purchase of liquor and that such would be immediately investigated.

"But for every person improperly using this money, I can show that we have 500 using it for the purposes intended," he said.

"It is difficult to understand," Ellis continued, "how anybody can understand the operations of this department and the type of people to whom we are giving assistance until he has studied the problem, because it took me three months of continuous study and investigation to begin to understand it. It is discouraging that, despite the evidence of general interest in civilian defense and volunteer work, which is nothing more or less than preparing to help those who, in an emergency, may be unable to help themselves, we still have a few individuals taking the position that the needy, unfortunate and underprivileged in our community should be forgotten."

"This war effort has already cost two hundred billion dollars, all on account of the selfishness and greed of people in the past and their failure to consider their relation to other people. The total cost of the entire federal, state and local relief programs will not be an iota of the total expenditure on account of that attitude."

Ellis reiterated that all clients on direct relief must be unemployable to qualify for it and showed a list of reasons, compiled by Grady hospital, for the unemployability of those at present on the rolls. According to the list, the chief disability is heart disease, leading with 330 cases. Cripples and paralytics, numbering 242, were next, and next were 159 too old to work. Fourth were 144 cases of tuberculosis. There were 88 mental cases.

Under another category came 259 widows or deserted women with dependent children or husband in prison.

Ellis reported that his department gave assistance, including aid to children and old age pensions, to 15,728 persons, 55 per cent of them white. In addition, he said, there are 14,825 on WPA and 428 in CCC camps. On direct relief were 5,115. The number of old-age pensions, said the administrator, increased from 4,362 last October to 6,078 in May, the average pension amounting to $13 per month. Direct relief cases, he went on, dropped from 5,241 in March to 4,892 in April, due to the fact that some member of the family had been able to help unemployable parents or relatives.

Another Emery Store Is Robbed of $285.

The Emery Five and Ten Store, 2 Ashby street, N. W., was burglarized Wednesday night, with more than $285 being taken, police reported yesterday.

J. D. Stewart, manager, said that $255 in cash belonging to the store, $10.50 in pennies belonging to Stewart and $20 in a Navy Relief bank were missing.

Radio Patrolmen Roy Etheridge and M. B. Hogue said they saw two Negroes running from the store as they arrived. Admittance was gained by breaking the glass in a side door, they said.

ODT Urges That All Fairs Be Deferred

Step Taken To Reduce Burden on Transportation.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP) Deferment of all state and county fairs, as well as nonessential conventions, meetings and group tours for the duration of the war was requested today by Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director.

Asserting that "there is good reason to hope" that government controls over travel can be avoided, provided civilians restrict their use of trains and buses, Eastman likewise cautioned against pleasure trips other than vacations.

On the grounds that delays, crowded and scarcity of accommodations are inevitable because of the increasing burdens of transportation facilities, Eastman asked that civilians defer any mass movements not closely connected with the war effort and that, in the case of meetings related to the war program, "attendance should be skeletonized along the lines of the example set by the American Legion in its forthcoming convention."

"Postpone all state and county fairs," he said. "Farmers should not be encouraged to use, for non-essential purposes such as these, the tires which are so necessary to their livelihood and so necessary to provide a continuing food supply. Nor should they transfer the burden of such travel to public carriers."

Southeastern Will Go On.

The Southeastern fair at Lakewood Park this fall has already been "planned to the hilt," commitments made and will go on unless the government orders otherwise, Mike Benton, president of the fair association, said last night.

"This fair is essentially an agricultural fair, with a United Nations theme this year and I think it falls in a slightly different category from 'non-essential' entertainment," he said.

"We have already made arrangements for representatives of the embassies of England, Russia, China and the rest to be here," Benton said. Youth organizations will participate in the fair as they did last year, and that the fair is important both from the standpoint of its United Nations theme and the dissemination of farming and food preparation information.

Glover Denied Probation Plea

Attorneys for J. G. (Bugs) Glover, former supervisor of state convict farms, yesterday sought unsuccessfully to get his one-year sentence in the federal penitentiary changed to a year on probation.

Judge E. Marvin Underwood denied the motion to suspend operation of the sentence after physicians testified that Glover, confined to a local hospital, was unable to be moved. He instructed the marshal, however, to make sure that Glover was able to travel before he took him in custody.

Glover was sentenced early in January, 1941, to a year's imprisonment on charges of mail fraud.

Emory University Promotions, Appointments Are Announced

George H. Mew Is Named Business Manager of Institution.

Appointments and promotions at Emory University for 1942-43 were announced yesterday by President Goodrich C. White, following action by the executive committee of the board of trustees. Several widely known administrative officers are involved in the changes. George H. Mew was named business manager of the university in addition to his duties as treasurer; Robert F. Whitaker was appointed assistant to the president in addition to his duties as alumni director; and Dr. J. H. Purks Jr. was elected acting dean of the graduate school in addition to his duties as dean of the college of arts and sciences. The graduate deanship was vacated by the recent election of Dr. White to the presidency.

Dr. White said that Associate Dean Hollis Edens, formerly in charge of Emory Junior College at Valdosta, discontinued "for the duration," would become associate dean of the undergraduate divisions on the Atlanta campus. Dean Edens also will devote part of his time to field work.

Other Promotions. Another appointment of wide interest is that of L. C. Clegg, formerly assistant dean of men, as director of student aid and placements. Mr. Clegg also was promoted to the rank of assistant professor of sociology.

Other promotions in the teaching ranks include Dr. L. D. Haskew, president of the Georgia Education Association, from associate professor to professor of education; Dr. I. W. Brook, from assistant professor to associate professor of Romance languages; Dr. Henry M. Johnson, from acting professor to associate professor of religious education; Dr. John D. Lee Jr., from assistant professor to associate professor of church history; Dr. Donald T. Rowling, from assistant professor to associate professor of New Testament; Dr. R. A. Day Jr., from instructor to assistant professor of chemistry; and Dr. Edwin T. Martin, from instructor to assistant professor of English.

Five faculty members have been transferred from the Valdosta division to other branches of the university, Dr. White said. Coming to the main campus in Atlanta are Dr. Lee W. Blitch, associate professor of chemistry; Dr. J. C. Craven, assistant professor of mathematics and physics; Ward Pafford, assistant professor of English; and W. G. Workman, assistant professor of Bible and psychology. J. B. Harrington, assistant professor of history, will join the faculty of the Emory Junior College at Oxford.

Faculty Newcomers. Newcomers to the university faculty next September will include Dr. Charles T. Lester, assistant professor of chemistry, and Jack E. Tilford, assistant professor of English. Richard E. Felder and William N. Fitzpatrick, new assistants in anatomy, already have entered upon their duties in the school of medicine.

Leaves of absence were continued by the executive committee for Dr. Haywood J. Pearce Jr., professor of history; Dr. Mose L. Harvey, assistant professor of history; Dr. L. M. Jones, associate professor of law; Dr. R. T. Lagemann, assistant professor of physics; and Sam M. Shaver, instructor in German. Leaves for next year also were granted Dr. M. S. Culp, of the school of law, who will continue teaching part-time in the evening division, and A. W. Smith, instructor in modern languages at Valdosta.

President White announced that Milton Campbell, instructor in psychology, would leave today for Brookfield, Alabama, to work as a civilian expert in the Army's psychological testing program. He will have charge of co-ordinating psychological tests at the post's schools.

The summer quarter, the first in 12 years at Oxford, will close August 28.

Latin America Display Is Loaned to G. S. C. W.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., June 18.—The United States Office of Education is exhibiting a display on Latin America in the Peabody library at Georgia State College for Women. Loaned by the Library Service division of the office, the exhibit is intended to foster better understanding of the republics of the Western Hemisphere.

Included in the exhibit are books, charts, posters, native costumes, and artifacts of the various republics. Flags of the 21 republics are also included in the display. The exhibit will continue for a week, according to Dr. Mildred English, superintendent of Peabody school. This will enable the visitors to the fourth annual reading clinic, scheduled to open June 22, to view the display.

Enrollment in Summer School Sets Record; 1,299 Register.

Emory University has the largest summer session enrollment and greatest medical school registration in the history of that institution, officials announced yesterday.

Because of the war need for doctors, 240 have enrolled in the medical school, Goodrich C. White, president, declared at an executive meeting. "It's the largest number ever," he said.

The total summer registration, announced Registrar J. Goodrich Stipe, is 1,299. "And those figures are incomplete because there will be more late registrants," he said.

Feeding Problem. The unprecedented summer school enrollment, described by President White as "a 100 per cent increase over last summer," has caused the school officials plenty of problems and not the least of those is feeding the students.

As enrollment grew, the line waiting at the cafeteria grew also. It grew and grew and first thing anyone knew, the head of the line was in the cafeteria, but the tail of the line was way, way out on the campus.

School officials got their heads in a huddle and now there are two lines—one for hot plates and for cold plates—and the dining rooms of some fraternity houses (usually closed all summer) are now operating.

669 Last Year. The summer session registered only 669 students last year, but the one this year is something else again. The roll of 1,299 even exceeds the spring session registration of 1,189.

And on top of all that, Emory has just started out with a new class of 50 young women in its nursing school—turning out nurses to care for the victims of war. The present nursing class is the third this year.

Breaking down the hot weather enrollment, Stipe said: 696 are listed in the college of liberal arts; 240 in the medical school; 89 in business education; 108 in the graduate school; 36 in library; 12 in law; 70 in the principals' workshop in the education department, and 49 in the theological school.

Bright Future For Southern Farmers Seen

Macon Trade Board Secretary Addresses 4-H Club Session.

MACON, Ga., June 18.—(AP)—Present emergencies call for planning of a higher order and a more permanent program, the State 4-H Club convalesce was told here tonight.

Addressing a banquet session, Lee Trimble, of the Macon Chamber of Commerce, said that under war conditions the responsibility of leadership is heavier than ever before.

Agriculture played a vital part in World War No. 1, he said, but when the conflict ended "farmers were left in a much worse position than before. The experience must not be repeated."

Trimble predicted that for the first time since the War Between the States the way is clear for real progress by southern agriculture.

"Sufficient aids are provided by the several federal agencies, he said, 'to enable any worthy farm operator to adopt, finance and carry out a program.'"

He said a challenge has been extended to farmers by the government through emphasis on soil conservation, pasture development, building, reforestation, cover crops, terracing, and other phases of farm work.

Brunswick Executive Is Injured in Fall

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. BRUNSWICK, Ga., June 18.—George T. Rives, executive vice president and general manager of the Downing Company, Inc., of this city, is receiving treatment in an Atlanta hospital where he was rushed in an ambulance Wednesday afternoon following an accident in which he sustained a serious hip fracture.

Mr. Rives was hurt in an unusual accident. Believing he was late, he was running to the launching of the steel tug Port Wentworth at the local plant of the Brunswick Marine Construction Corporation at noon Wednesday, and when he stooped to pass under a rope, lost his balance and fell on his hip, sustaining a serious fracture of his leg below the left hip.
